VOL. XLVIII.—No. 270. CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 3, 1919. PRICE TWO CENTS.

CONNELLY, LAHL AND SHEPPARD WIN CITY PRIMARY CONTESTS

Preston Got 30 Republican Votes In First Ward---Coughlin May Be Democratic Nominee For District Attorney---Greene and Columbia County Results.

In the three contests in this city, at the primaries, Tuesday, W. H. Connelly, contestant, for nomination for alderman in the Eleventh ward, defeated Granville Whitaker, designated by the Republicans at their caucus, by a vote of 97 to 81. In the Fifth ward, Charles Lahl, Jr., regular Republican designation, defeated William A. Bilyou, contestant, for county committeeman by a vote of 63 to 43. There was also a Democratic contest in the Ninth ward for supervisor. Joseph A. Sheppard, regular party designation, defeated Thomas P. Rice, contestant, by a vote of 69 to 21.

In the First ward, Carlton S. Preston, Democrat, received 30 votes on the Republican ticket for nomination for alderman, his name being written in on that number of ballots. Charles S. Warren, the regular Republican designation, received 41 votes, and received the nomination. Mr. Preston received 22 of the 27 Democratic votes cast, there being also five blank votes. In the First ward Frederick Traver received 3 Democratic votes for designation for district attorney; Thomas Coughlin, 2; M. O. Auchmoody, 1; and W. H. Grogan, 1. There were 4 blanks, 4 void ballots, and one vote for alderman cast by Republicans in the First ward. Two Prohibition votes were cast in the First ward, one being blank.

The regular party nominations are as follows:

County—Republican.

County Treasurer, James Lounsbury.

Second ward, Fred J. Roosa.

Third ward, George Schick.

Ninth ward, Philo Powell.

Tenth ward, Walter D. Pettinger.

Eleventh ward, W. H. Connelly.

Twelfth ward, John E. Hull.

In each ward candidates for county committeemen, designated by each party for each district were voted for. The only contest was in the Fifth ward, as aforementioned.

In Greene county, Frank G. Jacobs of South Cairo, assistant index clerk of the assembly, is to step down from the assembly clerk's desk to take a seat on the floor. Mr. Jacobs a returned member of the Fifty-first Pioneer infantry, of Albany was nominated as the Republican candidate for the assembly to succeed Assemblyman Harding Showers, of Tannersville. Harry McK. Curtis of Coxsackie secured the nomination of district attorney and Wendell S. Sherman of Catskill was nominated for county treasurer. Dr. I. V. Sutton of Prattsville won out for the nomination of coroner.

The Democratic forces nominated Osborn A. Cole of Windham for member of assembly; and Leonard A. Warren of Coxsackie for district attorney. Wendell S. Sherman, the Republican choice, will be unopposed for county treasurer as the Democratic ballots left the space blank. Dr. Edwin L. Ford of Lexington was given the nomination for coroner. The fight for district attorney is peculiar. Both candidates are law partners in Coxsackie, and keen interest has been aroused over the election.

In Columbia county, Colonel Ransom H. Gillet denied the right to file his petition designating himself as Republican nominee for member of assembly until granted an order to do so by Supreme Court Justice Wesley O. Howard of Troy, Tuesday won out for the nomination in the Columbia county primaries over John W. Scott of Copake, the present incumbent by from 300 to 500 votes according to incomplete returns early this morning.

Colonel Gillet lives at New Lebanon and served with the Twenty-seventh division in France where he was badly wounded. He was supervisor of the town at the time he went to war and served in the Spanish-American war. The superintendent of elections refused to file his petition for the nomination on the grounds that it was defective in several respects. By the court order Colonel Gillet was allowed to correct the mistakes and the superintendent was directed to file the petition as of the date required by the primary law. Colonel Gillet will be opposed by Chester Miller, Democrat of Copake.

JAIL BREAKING ATTEMPT FAILED

It is the same old story. A woman spilled the beans. Edward Norton, in jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of being implicated in stealing goods for West Shore freight cars, told his sister or cousin or some other woman, who visited him in jail that with David Moseley of Gardiner, awaiting the action of the next grand jury for stealing a Ford auto, he was to make a get-away from the jail on Tuesday night. She told another woman, and in some manner the sheriff's office was tipped off. Of course the two inmates are still there, as they are confined far apart, and the cell bars are of steel and very hard, and virtually impossible to saw apart. Investigation, however, was made and it was found that an attempt had been made by some one to saw off one of the bars with a silver plated table knife, but with little effect, as the one who did it got more arm exercise out of his efforts than he did results on the steel bar. Had an exit been made from a cell, the next thing would have been to get out of the barred cell corridor, and after that get out of the barred windows in the heavy stone walls.

Mechanics' Convention Ended.

The forty-eight annual convention of the Jr. O. U. A. M., state of New York, U. S. of America, came to a close at Pythian Hall Tuesday afternoon, after the installation of officers, and adopting reports of officers and committees.

In His New Office.

Dr. Frank Quinlan is now located in his new offices at 245 Broadway where he will be glad to see his patients. His office hours for week days will be from 2 to 3 p. m. and from 7 to 8 o'clock in the evening. Dr. Quinlan will see patients on Sunday by appointment only.

BIG WASHOUT ON O. & W. CRIPPLES TRAIN SERVICE

Heavy Rain Fall of Past Few Days Washes Out Over 200 Feet of Track Between Napanoch and Ellenville—Trains Ran as Far as Napanoch.

The Kingston branch of the O. & W. Railroad was tied up and crippled today with a bad washout between Napanoch and Ellenville, and another between Ellenville and Spring Glen. While the work of making repairs was under way as rapidly as possible today, it was not expected to straighten out the traffic snarl until Thursday.

This morning the 6 o'clock train pulled out of the uptown station and went safely through, but the 9:15 train was unable to proceed beyond Napanoch. At the station here inquiry over the telephone brought out the fact that it was a very bad washout just beyond Napanoch, where over two hundred feet of the track and road bed had been torn out by the rain storm which had caused the nearby streams to overflow their beds.

Between Ellenville and Spring Glen there was another break reported, also caused by a washout.

It was stated that the trains would proceed as far as Napanoch, and that passengers for New York city at points between Kingston and Napanoch would be brought to the Kingston station, and that a special train would be run over the West Shore tracks to New York. It was expected that this special train would leave Kingston about noon today.

COMPENSATION CLAIMS HEARD

Deputy State Industrial Commissioner Abbott was late in arriving in this city Tuesday afternoon in taking up claims for compensation made to the board. The hearing was scheduled to open at 2:30 o'clock, but did not open until nearly 4 p. m., as Mr. Abbott and the stenographer were delayed by reason of the train from Hudson, where he was sitting in the morning, being over half an hour late in reaching Rhinecliff, and he missed conection with the ferry to this city.

The calendar of claims was as follows, the first name being the claimant, the next the employer, third the carrier, and last the claim, or award or petition:

Cyrus Stillwell, S. H. Harry Co., Travelers Co. Continued case. Had been awarded $420.

Newell Miller, S. J. Harry Co., Travelers Co. Consideration as to extent of injury. Rate of compensation should be $11.54 a week.

Lewis Thiel, Winston Co., State Fund. Former award rescinded. New award as follows: Total, $427.15, being for 48.8 weeks at $12.77. Having been paid $291.76, future payment to be $25.54 in 12 bi-monthly payments.

POUGHKEEPSIE GETS NEXT ANNUAL P. O. S. A. CONVENTION

Won Out Over Schenectady and Waverly---Henry Swartz Elected State President---Convention Has Much Business.

The annual convention of the New York State Patriotic Order Sons of America will be held next year at Poughkeepsie. The contest between Schenectady and Waverly for the convention next year ended in the Bridge City getting the convention. Practically the entire morning business session was taken up in the election of officers and settling the question as to where the next annual meeting would be held.

Owing to the large amount of business which developed the business session was continued this afternoon and the usual routine business continued. In the election of officers there were but two contests, one for guard and one in the election of delegates to the national convention. The session today will end the business of the 22nd annual convention which has been one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

Tuesday evening the grand officers and delegates were given a banquet and reception in the lodge rooms.

After the following officers had been elected, an adjournment was taken until this afternoon when the unfinished business will be completed:

COMMUNIST PARTY LEADER HELD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—The convention of the Communist Party of America, an ultra-radical group, opened the session this morning minus the party's organizer, Dennis E. Batt, who languished in the Central police station, awaiting a call into police court. Batt must answer to the charge of making a revolutionary speech, in which he is alleged to have advocated the overthrow of the United States government a week ago.

ROOSEVELT FLAG FLIGHT COMING

Under the auspices of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, a "flag flight" which will symbolize Theodore Roosevelt's Americanism, began in Buffalo today and will be ended in Oyster Bay on October 19. High school students and members of the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations will carry an American flag through forty-eight cities and towns of historical interest in New York state.

The silken standard will differ from the regulation flag in that it will have no stars but a bare blue field when the "flight" is started. The first of the stars will be sewn of a high school in Buffalo, and the o fa high school in Buffalo, and the last in the assembly room of the Oyster Bay high school.

The "flag flight" will be a preliminary to the great nation-wide appeal to the friends and admirers of the late Theodore Roosevelt for a $5,000,000 fund to erect memorials to him. This appeal will be made during the week of October 20-27 by the Roosevelt Memorial Association. William Boyce Thompson, president of the association, has announced that the organization will build a monument in Washington and establish a public park in Oyster Bay.

After reaching Albany the route of the boys who carry the flag will be down the Hudson valley, taking in Kingston and other cities, a star to be sewn on the flag in each city.

Citizens and patriotic societies in all the towns along the route, which have been chosen because of their historic interest, are arranging meetings in which to receive the flag with proper honors.

Had Narrow Escape.

John Genther, the tonsorial artist, who has a barber shop in the Mansion House on lower Broadway, had a narrow escape Tuesday afternoon about 6 o'clock while walking up Broadway on his way home to supper. A big touring car speeding up the Broadway hill skidded on the wet pavement and shot up on the sidewalk in front of Kleun's cafe just as Genther was passing. As it was passing he carried a raised umbrella and the mud guard knocked the umbrella from his hand, narrowly missing hitting Genther, and crashed into the building. The building, umbrella, and Genther escaped injury, but the forward part of the auto was slightly damaged. It was owned by out of town parties who proceeded on their way.

Katrine Grange Dance Tonight.

There will be the usual dance held this evening at Lake Katrine Grange Hall. McGee's orchestra from Saugerties will furnish the music for dancing and Miller's ice cream will be on sale during the evening by the plate or quart.

Red Cross Sewing.

There will be sewing at the Red Cross work rooms tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CAPT. HENDRICKS DIVISION ENG'R

Kingstonian Who Won Honors in Great War to Have Charge of Work on State Canals and Terminals Utica to New York.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 3 (Special)—State Engineer and Surveyor Frank M. Williams, yesterday, announced the appointment of Captain E. D. Hendricks bearer of General Pershing's citation for distinguished service in France, as division engineer in charge of the eastern division, with headquarters in Albany. Captain Hendricks will have charge of all engineering work on the canals and terminals lying east of Utica and including New York city and succeeds Captain George D. Williams, recently appointed County Engineer of Oneida county. The salary attached to Captain Hendrick's new position is $4,800 a year.

Captain Hendricks was born in Kingston, New York, where his father still lives and is married and has one son. He entered the state engineer's department in 1902 and, shortly thereafter was appointed assistant engineer, which post he held until 1910 when he was appointed resident engineer in charge of the third residency Erie Canal, being later appointed as senior assistant engineer.

His home is at Fort Plain, New New York, and previous to entering the state's service he was was engaged in irrigation and mapping projects along the Rio Grande river and other sections in the far west.

Captain Hendricks attended the first officers training camp at Plattsburgh and immediately after our declaration of war applied for a commission and was assigned to Madison Barracks. Following his graduation he was commissioned as captain in the 303rd Regiment of Engineers, 78th Division. This regiment gave a splendid account of itself in the battle of Grande Pre, France, and it was in this engagement that Captain Hendricks was badly gassed and won his citation from General Pershing.

He was honorably discharged from the army early this summer and was at once, reappointed as resident engineer by State Engineer Williams and placed in charge of the Mohawk river residency which includes all Barge Canal and bridge work from Troy to Utica.

CARPENTERS STRIKE TO ENFORCE DEMAND FOR 75 CENTS AN HOUR

200 To 300 Men Out In City---Employers Say Notice Too Short and Demand Too Drastic---Text of Union Notice.

All members of Carpenters and Joiners Union, No. 251, of the city went out on strike this morning and the members of the union state that they will not go back until their demand for an increase has been met. Some time ago the members of the union asked for an increase of wages to 75 cents an hour, making $6 a day for the eight hour day. At present their scale of wages for an eight hour day is $5. The time set for the granting of the increase was September 3rd and as the demand was not met all members of the union walked out this morning.

When seen at their rooms this morning in Meister's hall the officials refused to discuss the matter other than to say that they were asking 75 cents an hour and it was no more than was being asked in other cities, and in some cases more than 75 cents an hour had been demanded and was being paid

When asked as to an estimate of the number of men who were out the officers stated that all the members were out but no estimate as to the number would be made public. At the time there were about a dozen members at headquarters and from time to time others dropped in to register.

At present there are a number of contracts under way and the strike will interfere with their completion if it is not settled. Besides the members who work for contractors all over the city there are a large number of shop men who are also on strike.

The Employers' Statement.

A representative of the employers stated this morning that the demands were made by the union on August 23, to take effect September, a copy of which demand is as follows:

To Whom it May Concern:

We, the members of Kingston Local, No 251, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, do hereby demand that on and after September 3, 1919, the rate of wages for journeymen carpenters, cabinet makers, bench and machine hands, shall be 75 cents per hour. Forty-four hours shall constitute a week's work and Saturday afternoon shall be a half-holiday and no work shall be performed on that afternoon unless double time is paid. All members of the Union shall be paid on Saturday noon, or members shall be paid for time lost after 12 M. Not more than 2 days shall be kept back in any week.

Apprentices shall be rated accordingly. The business agent shall have access to all jobs where members of our union are employed.

All of the foregoing was passed by a unanimous vote of Local 251 on August 20, 1919.

Signed, ANDREW LORD, President.

ALFRED BARLEY, Recording Secretary.

The time of notice being so short and the demands so drastic, he said, especially in view of the appeal by President Wilson that every effort be made to speed up production with the view of reducing the high cost of living, which was concurred in by the American Federation of Labor, the employers at a meteing held last Wednesday night, decided that they must refuse the demands.

About 200 to 300 Out.

It was estimated today that there were between 200 and 300 men on strike, but these figures could not be verified.

KINGSTON POST SEEKS MEMBERS

At Meeting at Armory Decide to Launch Membership Campaign—Appoint a Committee to Meet With Industrial Workers to Revise Tablet Names.

DECISION AFFECTS CLOSED SHOP

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Boston, Sept. 3—A decision of far reaching importance was handed down today by Judge Loring in the supreme court when he decided in favor of the National Equipment Company of Springfield, in its effort to restrain the National Association of Machinists from forcing the company to maintain a closed shop. Judge Loring said that the case came within the recent ruling of the United States supreme court in the case of Hickman Coal and Coke Company, that employers had the same liberty to employ non-union men as the union men had to organize.

Counsel for the Springfield Company sought an injunction but upon the promise of the attorney for the union not to interfere with the employes this was not granted.

Labor Day Accidents.

Harold Gibbs, a young boy residing in New York city, was struck near Haines Falls by an auto on Labor Day, and brought to the Kingston City Hospital. He will recover.

John Moon, a hunter and guide residing at Chichester, stepped out of an auto on the state road near Temple's Pond Labor Day to watch them haul an auto that had run off the road into the pond back on to the road, and was struck by an auto driven by Charles Beckman of New York. His injuries are not dangerous.

This evening all the boys who registered at the last registration during the past winter will appear at the armory at 7:30 o'clock in order to have new registration cards made out.

PRESIDENT'S TOUR STARTS TONIGHT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 3.—The administration's side of the problems facing the United States will be presented to the people by President Wilson during the coming 27 days. The much discussed western tour of the chief executive commences tonight. Leaving here he will make two addresses tomorrow, one in Columbus, Ohio, in the morning, the second in Indianapolis, Ind., in the evening. From then until September 29—Sundays excluded—the president will devote his time to making public his views of the remedies needed to solve the after-war problems of America.

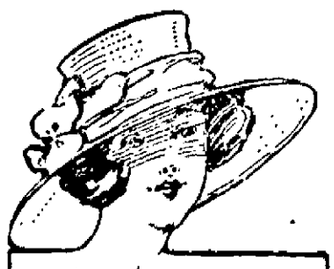

58 P. O. S. A. STATE CAMPS

There are 58 subordinate camps of the Patriotic Order Sons of America in the state of New York with a membership of about 3,000. The slogan of the order is Americanism, and in a circular issued by State Secretary A. P. Yelvington, of Binghamton, with his semi-annual report made in February, 1919, he says:

The war is over but not so the work of the P. O. S. of A. which is needed more at this time than ever before. With the elements of Anarchy and unrest doing their utmost to gain a foothold in our fair land, with the unwanted un-American Bolshevikism, and so-called Socialism of the I. W. W. type running rampant it is time for all true Americans to be up and doing, and this cannot be done without organization, and what order better fitted for this work than the Patriotic Order Sons of America.

Another After-The-Flu Clinic.

So much interest has been shown in the After-The-Flu Clinics held in this county and especially in our own city, that it has been decided to hold another of these very beneficial clinics at the Court House on Friday, September 26th. All who attended the last clinic in this city and were told to come to the next one for further inspection are asked to keep this date in mind and be sure to be present during some part of the day, and such persons as did not get to the other clinics are asked to attend this one.

Warm Rooms and a Cool Basement

With black diamonds at present prices, you want all the heat energy from your coal to concentrate on the job of sending warmth into living quarters. Boynton Square Pot boilers are built for free steaming with little fire. Only in intense cold will the rated capacity be needed. It's there when wanted.

The fire comes in direct contact with interior water surfaces. The unique shape of the fire-pot drops the ash from the sides freely and this contact point is as hot as the center of your fire. The perfect draft, extra large fire surface and upward trend of water surfaces keep the steam pressure high enough to heat all radiators steadily.

Boynton Square Pot boilers are noticeably economical of coal. Ask your dealer—or write us.

URGE CROSSING WARNING SIGNS

In an effort to reduce the number of accidents at grade crossings in the state highways, the public service commission is urging immediate compliance with a law which is not legally effective until March 1, 1920. As provided by a law of the 1919 legislature, cities and the state highway commission must install approach warning signs at railroad crossings at a distance of not less than 300 feet from the crossings. The railroad companies must furnish the signs mounted on nine-foot metal posts to the state and to the cities, which are required to place them in position and maintain them.

The sign must consist of a circular metal disk, 24 inches in diameter, with white field and black border one inch wide, black perpendicular and horizontal cross lines two and one-half inches wide, with reverse side of the disc painted black. The letter "R," five inches high, is to be placed in each upper quarter.

In accordance with the law, motor drivers must reduce the speed at approaching crossings and have the car under control. The power of legal enforcement rests with the public service commission.

Mr. and Mrs. William Knible of Brooklyn, called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellsworth on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Planck, with friends from Big Hollow, visited Lake Mohonk on Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Ellsworth went to the Kingston City Hospital on Saturday and had her tonsils removed by Drs. Ross and Chandler. She is doing as well as can be expected. S.

Goldsmith's Masterpiece.

Goethe, at the time of publication, said that "The Vicar of Wakefield" was one of the best novels ever written, and called it a "prose-idyll." It is certainly the musical prose of a true poet.—Julian Hill.

April 8, 1919.

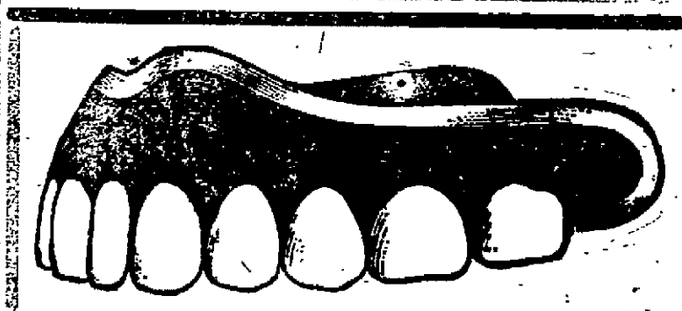

Dear Sir—It is with the greatest pleasure that I write you recommending your Wonderful Ear Oil. My mother has been deaf for over 20 years, and she used two bottles of your oil, and yesterday, for the first time in over 20 years, she heard Berry's Band play in Hemming Park, here. Words are inadequate to express to you the thanks of mother and myself. I am a member of the theatrical profession and very well and favorably known here, and you can use my name in recommending your Ear Oil.

Yours gratefully,

"DIRECT" BITE TEETH"

After years of experimenting our laboratories have discovered a direct bite set of artificial teeth. These plates improve the sense of taste and insure perfect enunciation and articulation. The teeth absolutely cannot be discerned from natural teeth. These teeth because of the direct bite have three times the biting strength of ordinary plates. Are you now wearing artificial teeth? If so, we strongly advise you to call and investigate this new plate.

WOULD LIKE TO MEET WITH LUKE

This morning the telephone bell in police headquarters rang and Sergeant Hanley answered the 'phone. A woman's voice stated that she was telephoning from the Riverside Hotel of New Paltz, and that the cook, whose name was Luke, had left suddenly that morning taking with him $80 in cash and some articles of jewelry, and that he was on his way to Kingston in a taxi to take the train for New York. She gave a description of Luke, but did not give her name. She said she did not know what Luke's last name was. Up to noon the local police had not met up with Luke.

36,762 CROSSED W. S. CROSSING

Saturday, Sunday and Monday the local police department kept track of the number of persons using the Broadway crossing of the West Shore railroad. On Saturday 6 587 vehicles were counted crossing the tracks and 6,512 pedestrians. Sunday there were 4,811 vehicles and 3,577 pedestrians. Labor Day 26,821 persons in vehicles and 8,941 pedestrians passed over the crossing, a total for the holiday of 56 762 or nearly 7 000 more than the population of Kingston.

PAINT FADED HAT

Some Effective Hand Touches for Headgear.

Any Number of Simple Designs May Be Worked Out by Woman Who Is at All Clever With Brush and Colors.

If it's the old straw hat that is looking pretty much the worse for wear, but still has possibilities to carry it through the rest of the summer, you might treat it with the paint brush.

Usually the hat that begins to look seedy so early in the race is a light hat. So the first thing to do is to give it a brand-new complexion. Cleanse it, and then let it go at that—as far as the background is concerned—or treat it to any kinds of hat dyes on the market. The painted hat is most effective when it's first of all a black hat, as witness the stunning examples in the millinery shops. So you will do well to let the new coat be a black one, or at least a deep blue or purple.

One appreciable thing about this fad for trimming a bit of headgear with oil colors is the effectiveness of big, simple, rather splashy designs as compared with the insignificance of more tedious decoration, particularly if the hat be sport and the straw rather of a coarse variety. Colorful conventional fruits and flowers are excellent choices. They may be placed precisely or with new art freedom on crown or brim, wherever you choose, or wherever they are calculated to be most becoming.

Delightful in an entirely individual way are the bird and animal motifs for the brims of hats for the wee people. If you appply them where hat bands usually go, you can make a stencil band and expedite them with almost lightning rapidity.

But maybe you would like to get a bit ahead of the season. In that case you will treat yourself to a chapeau in a pastel velvet and treat the velvet to some straight-stitch motifs, worked up in tinsel, or to a stunning embossed effect that is achieved by cording a design in all-over effect over the whole surface of the hat.

PRETTY THINGS IN FOULARD

Parisian Dressmakers Are Turning Out "Creations" That Are Much More Than Ordinarily Attractive.

An excellent piece of advice for the summer is: "When in doubt, choose foulard." Foulard has again come into its own kingdom; never has this delightful silk been more lovely never has it been produced in more delicate and original colorings.—The Paris dressmakers are doing rather wonderful things with spotted foulards. They are using the spots as a groundwork for silk or wool embroideries and producing really amazing results by simple means. For example, a little chemise dress of black foulard was dotted over with large white rings. At the hem, for a depth of twelve inches, these rings were worked over on the outside with japonica pink silk and covered—that is to say, the inner round—with a miniature lattice of silver threads. The same embroidery was applied to the front and back of the bodice and the sash was made of japonica pink satin ribbon with black and white tassels. It was charming, this little dress, and so simple; any one could achieve it. Rings or stripes may be decorated in this way with colored silks and metallic threads. Irregular designs, too, can be outlined or filled in.

DAINTY BLOUSE

Dainty Frills of Lawn.

One and two-inch frills of lawn either hemmed or used in a double thickness is one of the daintiest trimmings that can be used on fluffy wash summer frocks. On the organdies so good right now, voiles and ginghams, it is charming to edge sleeves, necks, outline boleros, pockets and trim skirts. For children's frocks particularly it is a simple appropriate looking trimming.

And speaking of children, one can get a great many ideas that are just as effective and smart looking for grownups' frocks. Blouses, smocks, sweaters and hats, by looking at the pretty hand-made dresses in both children's and babies' specialty shop windows. The embroidery used on hats, too, displayed in milliners' windows is often a clever pattern to adapt to dresses, for the stitches are nearly always the kind that make a show with little work.

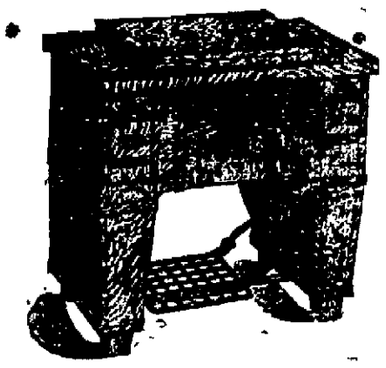

Most Valuable Plant.

No plant renders man greater service than does the wheat, because it supplies to the greater part—and the better part, too—of the western world its staff of life. From wheat the leading nations of the earth obtain their bread.

Village Takes Ferry Control.

The Catskill-Greendale ferry passed into the ownership of Catskill village on Monday. The organization remains as it has been and the ferry is going right along doing business as a municipal institution quite as it did as a private corporation.

Name Is John Wesley's.

The term "Methodist" was first applied to Charles Wesley, and not to John Wesley, the real founder of Methodism. And it was applied as a term of ridicule, or as an epithet. Charles Wesley was a student at Oxford, where, as he says, he began "to observe the method of study prescribed by the university." He must have been a stickler for "method," for he was always using the word. "This gained me the nickname of Methodist," he says in one of his letters.

Nation of Drug Addicts.

Practically all of the natives of Peru are drug addicts. The coca plant from which cocaine is made has been cultivated by these natives since prehistoric times, its leaves being chewed to get the desired effect. It has been estimated there are at least 8,000,000 persons living in the central part of South America that are chewers of coca. Use of the leaf is said to enable them to withstand the effects of greater altitudes and to develop physical strength and endurance. By frequent resort to coca, moreover, the Indians can go for long periods without food, without any apparent disastrous effects.

Tale-Telling Tails.

There is only one insect which enjoys the luxury of a tail, and it is to be found in the northeast of Tasmania. This insect is a pale greenish-brown in color, and its body when full grown is just about the size of a sunflower-seed. In times of peace the tail—which is three-eighths to a quarter of an inch in length—lies placid and straight, but when on the warpath it is drawn up into an angry, vertical position. The mosquito is its favorite diet. Its domestic life is a villainous one, for when old enough to assert its independence it devours its parents and takes full possession of the parental web.

Hadn't Fooled Helen.

Mother would not take Helen with her when she went downtown and was trying to slip away without her knowing it, so father called Helen to come to him, when she said, "I has to watch mummer, 'cause she's tryin' to runn away."

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 3, 1919.

"MEMBERS OF THE SAME CLUB."

High in the councils of Tammany Hall, and close conferee of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany George Gordon Battle has been appointed by Governor Smith, under the provisions of the Moreland act, to investigate the state department of agriculture. No one will attack Mr. Battle personally or question his ability. But the wisdom of appointing a lawyer from New York City, and one not identified in any way with the farming interests, will be questioned seriously by those who are unopposed to an investigation but who like to feel that politics will have no part in it. Thus with Mr. Battle's conection with Tammany, up-state will watch with concern the procedure so that it can be determined later whether the inquiry was sincere or purely subtle politics as played by Tammany, and directed by the Governor.

It is competent to note that former Governor Martin H. Glynn and State Commissioner of Education John H. Finley, who were appointed by the Governor to make an inquiry in the food problem, and who had authority to go so far as they might choose relative to the conduct of the department, declined to take up this work. The former governor and Dr. Finley were obdurate in their declination and the outcome was that Mr. Battle was named—the same George Gordon Battle who has been a directing force at every Democratic convention or conference for two decades.

Under the circumstances up-state will scan the proceedings conducted by Mr. Battle, and his assistants, so that there will be no doubt in the minds of the farming people whether the investigation was purely political. This is only what might be anticipated when it is a known fact that last winter Governor Smith made recommendations, which, if followed by the Republican legislature, would have turned the department of agriculture up side down and would have placed it under the absolute control of Tammany Hall. This was blocked decisively by Speaker Sweet and Majority Leader Senator J. Henry Walters.

Up-state never has and never will look upon Tammany Hall or any of its members as friendly to the farming interests, and notwithstanding his personal standing the rural communities will watch daily the actions of a man who has been such a power in Tammany as Mr. Battle. That there will be found room for improvement in the department no one will deny, and the same rule would apply to every single bureau and department in the state service, but the fact remains that there was a demand by Tammany Democrats for control of this department last winter and Mr. Battle is a Tammany Democrat. Thus, before the investigation is finished, it may be developed that it was sincere and consistent or it may be taken that Tammany Hall had a selfish hand, the Governor, Mr. Battle and Charles F. Murphy being members of the same club.

There are plumbers and tinners who demand 90 cents an hour, charging up in addition every minute of time for coming and going, but they hold a monopoly in their rural districts and there is no way to check them. With such prices demanded and paid for mechanical labor, no wonder the railroad shopmen, now receiving 58, 63 and 68 cents an hour, want 85 cents an hour. The only difference is that the government is their employer and can hold them in check, as it ought to do under present critical conditions. The railroads are already running into deficits and increased costs will bring disaster. Moreover, increases in wages, which are likely to be permanent, in order to meet a temporary situation, will mean proportionately increased costs of production and of living, thus hamstringing even the most promising efforts to bring down living costs.

The president's argument addressed to the shopmen, in his denial of their demand, is sound and should appeal both to their common sense and to their patriotism. What is to be gained by increased wages immediately followed by proportionate increase in all living costs? Such a policy merely tends to carry the vicious process to the point of madness, with no good to any one and great harm to all. If further increase in either wages or prices were prohibited, unquestionably the situation would at once begin to improve. Determined effort along this line, together with stern measures with regard to convicted profiteers, would aid greatly, but, as the president says, "only by increasing production and by rigid economy and saving on the part of the people can we hope for large decreases in the burdensome cost of living which now weighs us down."

HURLEY.

Hurley, Sept. 2.—Last Friday night the Willing Workers gave their entertainment. Everything except ing the moonlight was conducive to a good time and we had it. The audience filled the house and enjoyed every feature presented. Those engaged in the different numbers of the program entered into the spirit of their parts so that success was thus assured and secured. As has been previously stated, about all the young people of the church took part somewhere in the program, which added not a little to the entertaining element of the evening. The program opened with a piano solo by Miss Lucy Merritt. This was an interpretive selection, where a few words from the pianist elucidated the music, thus showing the audience that the interpretation of the melody was an accurate one. It was all carried out in Miss Merritt's usual perfect manner. "Scenic Reading" came next "In Aunt Jane's Day." Miss Slater read the lines, telling of the different stages in Aunt Jane's life. These stages were taken by Miss Irene Snyder doing a bit of embroidery; then followed Miss Krum at a spinning wheel; finally Miss Osterhoudt and Robert Cole acted the parts of bashful lovers. The cuteness of the applications pleased all. Tableaux came next, representing "Barefoot Boy," by Roger Ten Eyck. This was a picture. The little fellow appeared again in "Stolen Sweets." His face was all daubed up with jam, which he secured from a pot of jam in his hand "Home Scenes," by Mr. Merritt, representing a poor lone bachelor attempting to sew on a button, while appropriate lines were being read. It was rich. "A Critical Case" showed Ralph Mason as an old time doctor, feeling the pulse of a doll held in the arms of its anxious mother, Miss Nita Snyder. A Hurley Farmerette was taken by Miss Slater, dressed in regulation style, hoeing corn and again chopping wood. Next followed a recitation by Miss Merritt, "Neighbors." It was so good that Miss Merritt had to come back for an encore. Next number was "Days of Old Time Fashions." The Misses Julia Lockwood, Osterhoudt, Cole Ethel Elmendorf and Ralph Hiller, Ten Eyck and Myer took part, each one in costume of the "olden time." In the first scene the party was represented husking corn. Of course, there was the regulation red ear. The husking bee broke up by all singing "Seeing Nellie Home." The next scene represented a singing school. The young people went through all the motions of singing, without uttering a note, when suddenly the piano struck up "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," and after a march around the stage, the party disappeared from view. This took well with the audience and had to be repeated. Miss Slater gave the reading appropriate to the parts "Bachelor's Dream." Robert Cole sat lone and dreaming; his newspaper, even, could not attract him as his mind wandered to love episodes of days agone. Miss Merritt read the lines as each vision appeared and vanished; as each charmer had jilted him, there was a comical side to the skit as he showed his feeling by facial expression. The parts were taken by the Misses Arnst, Krum, Eva Hiller, Ruth Elmendorf, Mabel Hiller, Mary Elmendorf and Slater. The final scene showed Mrs. John Elmendorf as a mother with her two children. The entire number was a most interesting one and was highly enjoyed. "Grandma's Vision of Early Days." Miss Bessie Cole as grandma relates to her granddaughter, Miss Hilda Lockwood, the life in her early days. As she tells the story, a tableau is seen depicting exactly the opposite to what the grandma says, making many comical situations which amused the audience highly. The tableaux were carried out by Miss Mina Malcolm, Ethel Elmendorf, Master Snyder, Master Hiller and Cole. A dialogue followed between Miss Merritt and Mr. Merritt in a very clever skit, entitled "Pat's Letter." This was rich and full of good things and caused much amusement. The play, "Axin' her Fader," a negro skit, where a young woman of the family is endeavoring to get her lover's courage up to ask her father's consent. Father is very deaf indeed, and, of course, hears very indifferently. In fact he manages to misinterpret words in a very amusing manner. The lover is not only bashful but very apt to confuse his ideas as well as his words, getting the latter all twisted up at times. Besides his financee there are two sisters to meet. One is a little jealous but still endeavors to help maintain the dignity of the family, while the other sister, a wench, nags the lover continually and increases in every manner his confusion. The lover has become possessed of a fortune of forty-four dollars and three pair of old shoes, which in addition to his own weath of seventy-five cents makes his a very desirable acquisition to the family. The play is replete with laughable, comical and amusing incidents and must be seen to be appreciated and the Hurley audience did certainly appreciate every minute of the play. Just one selection from the play will appeal to about every man in the lover's position. It is hard enough to ask a girl to marry you without having to ask the father. Those taking part were Ralph and Robert Hiller and the Misses Eva and Mabel Hiller and Miss Vredenburgh. The social hour was a nice ending to the evening. The financial results were also satisfying. The money is to be divided equally with the church and the Young Woman's Society.

Although getting late in the season, still our visitors come. Miss Kline has opened up house again. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hiller came up from New Jersey on Friday for a visit to the Hiller homestead.

Dr. Van Schlieder and family are at the Newkirk home.

A number of members of the Townsend family are visitors for the week end at the Johnston home. They are relatives of Mrs. Johnston.

The town board met in the village on Thursday. The board appointed Mr. Stoutenberg truant officer for the upper end of the town and J. P. D. Ellsworth was appointed for this end of the town. A resolution was passed that nine hours should be a day's work on the road; no overtime. It was also voted to purchase a strip of land from the Dumond heirs, enough to furnish a four foot sidewalk around the bend of the road to Kingston, thus eliminating a very inconvenient and dangerous spot.

Levan Smith came up for the week end.

The warrant for the collection of school taxes has been issued to the collector, Henry Johnston, and school taxes may now be paid to him. The warrant is dated September 1.

Lloyd Lockwood is home for a visit.

You can economize in clothes

THE high cost of clothes is not the price you pay for them; it's what you get for your money.

If the clothes don't wear, don't give you good service, they're expensive at any price. You can reduce the cost of clothes by being particular about what you get for what you spend.

Get all-wool fabrics and high-class tailoring; nothing else wears so well. Get good style; a good appearance is economy. You'll get all these things here in Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; complete satisfaction or money back.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

LAST GOLF DAY AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Saturday, September 6th, the Dutchess Golf and Country Club will hold a "Day at Golf." The golf clubs belonging to the Hudson River Golf Association are invited to attend. It is expected that there will be a large delegation of players from Kingston.

Many handsome prizes are offered for the contestants. There will be chances for every player as there will be three divisions for those engaging in play.

The Poughkeepsie golf course is in excellent condition. There have been sufficient rains to make good fairways and good greens. This will be the last tournament of the Hudson River Golf Association this season and provisions are being made to accommodate over one hundred players.

IN SPORTS SUITS

Splendid Assortment for Woman Fond of Athletics.

Pastime Apparel Very Much English in Cut and Fabric—Knitted Suit May Almost Be Called Indispensable.

It is established that our most delightful fashions come from Paris, and it is becoming equally well established that our sport apparel is English in cut and fabric. We come to speak of the English walking hat, meaning the rather close-fitting hat with a tall crown curling up at the sides. English tweeds and flannels are a part of every sportswoman's vernacular, as suits of these materials are of her wardrobe. We differentiate between the onlookers and the real adherents, and recognize the rights of the latter to be as plainly and unbecomingly dressed as the most rigorous exercise demands.

During the last year of the war the knitted sport suits made by hand appeared, first in Switzerland at St. Moritz and such places where winter sports abound. They were instantly accepted and were a boon to French and Swiss makers also, who could thus employ remuneratively their long winter evenings heretofore given over to lace making or the fine embroideries, the demand for which was interrupted by war. Now the knitted suit is indispensable. The great vogue over here for tricolette and jersey cloth has further stimulated this demand.

The wool jerseys are ideal, for they do not rumple or crush and come in such splendid colors that every taste may be gratified. Hunters' green is a favored color for some reason—it always looks well and does not always fade as do other brilliant and decided shades. Nothing is more picturesque than the fashion of topping white skirts with jersey coats of the most brilliant tones imaginable—green, yellow, and scarlet seemingly preferred. Undeniably they make gay color splotches on the landscape and add to the summer picture.

Less serviceable than the wool jerseys are coats of fine faille and silk poplin. They are as delicate and refined as the most conservative woman could ask, and come in such pretty, soft colors as French blue and pale rose. The coat usually has rather wide sleeves which open over the blouse sleeve underneath and are not too tight. Deep revers cut away in front as a man's dinner coat rolls back at the sides and now and then one finds a sash finely fringed and belting in the waist.—New York Sun.

IN TRICOLETTE

IN FASHION LAND

Deep yoke effects will be seen in the new fur coats.

Bold striped goods will be much used for trimmings.

A frock of chambray has a vest and hem of gingham.

Some separate skirts consist of four tiers of pleating.

Many suits feature belt and waistcoat cut together.

Cost of Mail Tunics.

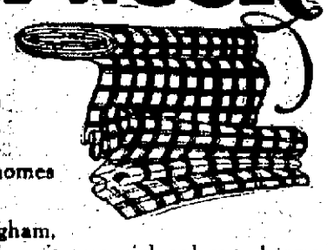

There are in the smart shops some interesting tunics made of a fabric resembling coat of mail—chain armor, really. These tunics are worn with skirts usually the same color but in a different fabric, one of the heavy silks. The fabric is in silver and gold, and the tunics are made with short sleeves, a plain neckline and a narrow belt to hold in the waistline a little. The tunics drop well over the hips.

First Private English Phone.

The first telephone ever placed in a private English residence is still to be seen at Marlborough house. It was made in 1878 on board the warship Thunderer and was subsequently set up between the sitting-room and the bedroom of the princess of Wales.

Fall Gingham Week

EACH Fall more women dress themselves and children in light weight clothing. The lengthening Indian Summer, and our heated homes and schools, makes this imperative.

What fabric is so appropriate as gingham, the cotton cloth woven in special patterns for Fall? We have these in new, rich colors to harmonize with Autumn's glorious hues.

RESOLUTION.

That means making up your mind to do a thing. Not making up your mind for some other fellow to do it, but doing it yourself. It's a good trait. It's a good all-the-year trait, but it's pretty rotten when it comes only on New Year's and quits on the second of January. The real resolution stays with a man every day of the week. It does him good; it does his club good and his city good. Join the Chamber of Commerce.

Spiritual Beauty.

"As regards the generality of women," says a well-known sculptor, "I notice a greater spirituality in the faces of my sitters when I compare them with the women who came to me before the war. They are interesting, the faces of women who have forgotten themselves in spending themselves for others. And, strangely enough, I have the impression that I see more quietly happy faces than I used to. In the eyes of many of the women I study in the streets and public places I trace sorrow and rest grief, but not so often present unhappiness. It is as if, in the severing of a human tie they have gained some spiritual, some other worldly comfort."

Nagoya's Two Attractions.

The noted temple of old Nagoya in Japan is the unpretentious shelter for the statues of Buddha's 500 original followers. It is scarcely possible that the 500 elect sat for these stone portraits, but the variety of physiognomy is astonishing. In fact, the range of types and combinations of features is such that the keeper insists that careful scrutiny will surely reveal the visitor's own august countenance. The center of interest in the town itself is the great porcelain industry, where ten-cent-store cups, which no Japanese would own, are manufactured by thousands for unesthetic foreigners, and works of art are created by master craftsmen for the select few.

A National Problem Solved

Pure, Wholesome Food + Nujol = Health

PURE, wholesome food is necessary, but it is not enough. The purest, most wholesome food will hinder rather than help health if allowed to clog the colon—the large intestine. And doctors agree that about 90% of our ailments are caused or intensified by constipation.

Some part of even the purest and most wholesome food is waste. If this waste is not kept moving out of the body, it stagnates and breeds poisons which saturate the system and cause or nourish disease.

The old, wrong way to attack such stagnation was to force a passage through the impacted mass.

And since health is as much a matter of how we eliminate waste as how we assimilate food-fuel, it must become evident to every thinking person that the use of a natural, drugless lubricant is as sensible and necessary as the eating of pure, wholesome food.

The three vital processes upon which health is based are Mastication, Assimilation, Elimination.

Therefore, the perfect recipe for health is thorough Mastication, Pure, wholesome Food, and Nujol.

Ports on Chilean Coast Line.

Chile has a long coast line which extends from about 18 degrees to 56 degrees south latitude. The so-called continental section of Chile extends from approximately the eighteenth to the forty second parallel, while the insular or archipelago section extends from the forty-second to the fifty-sixth parallel. In this long stretch of coast there are numerous ports.

Peruvian Flower Festival.

Peru celebrates a custom which dates from soon after the Spanish conquest. All soldiers' graves alike are decorated, including those of peons and Indians, individuals little regarded in Peru at all events during life. In the evening the populace gives itself over to feasting and merrymaking. This particular flower festival is held annually on November 1.

Oldest of American Reviews.

The North American Review, the first of the influential publications of its kind in America, was founded over a century ago by William Tudor, who was born in Boston 140 years ago. He was educated at Harvard, and then entered commercial life. In 1805, with his brother Frederic, he visited the West Indies, where they were the first to introduce the ice trade in tropical countries. In 1815 he founded the North American Review, the oldest of American reviews, and was its editor for several years. Later he entered the diplomatic field, representing the United States as charge d'affaires at Rio de Janeiro and consul at Lima, Peru. He died in the Brazilian capital in 1830. He was the author of several volumes, and was also the first to suggest the building of the Bunker Hill monument.

For Social Success.

Whenever you see a man who is successful in society, try to discover what makes him pleasing and, if possible, adopt his system.—Beaconsfield.

Ben Franklin's Razor was like his brain

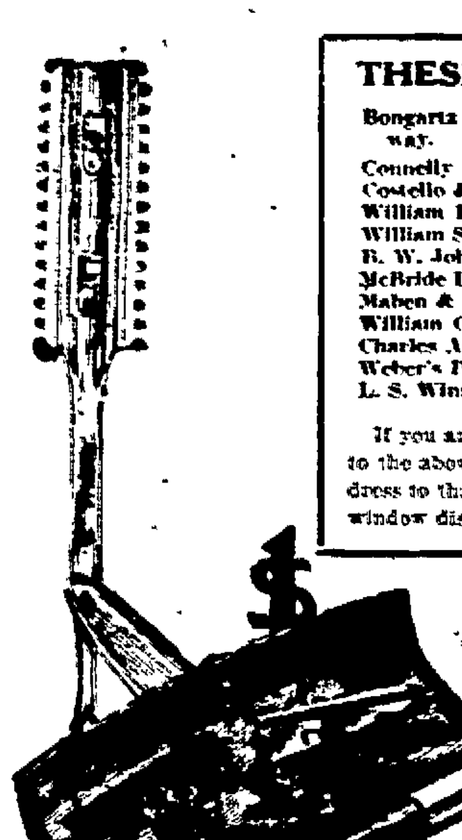

FRANKLIN'S BRAIN—like his razor—was a thing of exquisite balance. And by stropping his brain on other men's minds, he kept it always fresh-edged. So when, at seventy, his country pitted him against Europe's foremost diplomats, his keen intellect and old-fashioned honesty won their victory.

In like manner, his fine old razor was a thing of time-tested virtue—good heft in the hand, right shaving angle on the cheek, practical working length. All that Franklin's razor lacked to make it a perfect shaving tool was the double-edged, guarded blade of the

DURHAM-DUPLEX

A Real Razor—made Safe.

For much less money than Ben Franklin paid you can have a real razor—with the old-time balance in the hand—the comfortable length—and the proper shaving angle—a razor that won't cut your face, for it's guarded—and won't heat your skin, because it has no "wire edge." And for that same small sum, you can have the best-tempered blade on earth, the longest, keenest and strongest—a two-edged, detachable blade with more shaving mileage than any other blade. Don't discard this blade when dulled. You can strop it—you can hone it—why throw good steel away? "The greatest things are done by the help of small ones"

THIS old saying is true in the clothing business as well as in other things: That is why we do not overlook the least little thing that makes for the satisfaction of our customers and the betterment of our service.

Little things that seem insignificant to others are very important to us. What others do good, bad or indifferently, we try to do best.

Herein lies the success of this store-service---success that comes from the confidence and satisfaction of our patrons. Confidence and satisfaction that are the result of a broader, more enlightened, more intensified service.

James Clarence Mangan.

One of the most gifted poets, and at the same time not generally or popularly known, was James Mangan, whose profound knowledge of the languages, as well as his gift of poetic expression, can not help but impress even the most casual reader with this eccentric genius' power and versatility. He was an untiring worker, and all of his powers were kept constantly in play on account of his need of money to maintain not only his own immediate family, but to support an indigent father and mother. His overburdened mentality led him to resort to stimulants when his spirit was broken from overexertion, and after a life of many vicissitudes he died in a hospital June 20, 1849—some say from cholera, others, from starvation.

Dig Up Ancient Stone Coffin.

A stone coffin containing a human skeleton was unearthed at Wellbank quarry, in Lochee, Scotland, not far from Dundee, by a number of workmen who were engaged cleaning away a quantity of loose soil. The discovery was reported to the authorities, and scientific examination is to be made to discover, if possible, at what period the coffin with its human remains was placed in the vicinity. There is no burying ground near Wellbank quarry, and as it has been in operation for many years without any trace of the ground having been previously disturbed or used for any purpose it is difficult to account for the discovery that has been made.

Mastodon and Elephant.

The mastodon differed from the elephant in having shorter legs, a lower and more flattened head, with smaller and simpler grinding teeth, lower crowned and rooted with three or four high, transverse, enamel-covered crests without cement. The tusks were smaller, but the mastodon had a single small tusk concealed in the lower jaw, a remnant left from an ancestral type which bore two sets of large tusks, one set in the upper and the other set in the lower jaw. He was [illegible] beast, this mastodon, who came to the beach at Long Branch to sniff the ocean breezes and enjoy the juicy foliage of the low-branched trees which grew close along the shore in those days.

Well Worthy of Monument.

There is at Vilvorde, near Brussels, a monument to William Tyndale, translator of the Bible. On its low flat base are inscriptions in English, French and Flemish. Tyndale was a native of Gloucester, Eng., but his sympathy with the new learning aroused suspicion, and he removed to London. Finding it, however, impossible to complete his translation of the New Testament and the Pentateuch, upon which his fame with posterity rests, he removed to Hamburg and later to Cologne, and hence became identified with the continent. He began his printing in 1526.

Cure for Air-Sickness.

After reaching a certain height flying men suffer considerably from air-sickness. It is now suggested that nature has provided a remedy for this, for in the Cordilleras mountains of South America grow two herbs which instantly abate mountain sickness, vertigo, and breathlessness. They are known as cha-cha-coma and polch-pix-pita, and grow as leafless, juicy shoots on a dwarf tree. The shoots are full of a hot aromatic water with a peppery flavor. Scientifically developed, it is possible that an alkaloid may be extracted from them which will enable men to climb to heights undreamt of.

Valuable Daughters.

A daughter is of considerably more value to the Kaffir than a son. Up to the age of ten, a Kaffir girl is kept at home; then she has to earn her own living, either as a servant at a white lady's house, or by assisting her father in hoeing the mealie and corn patch. As soon as she reaches a marriageable age suitors arrive. Beauty is a small attraction in the eyes of the Kaffir lady-killer. The father bargains with the suitor. A very fair price for a good girl is [illegible]

POLL CLERKS TO HAVE A $10 DAY

Common Council Boosted Pay of Election Officers Tuesday—Polling Places For November Election Designated—But One Change Made.

Alderman Kullmann's resolution that the election clerks be paid at the rate of $10 a day for the four registration days and the one election day, was unanimously adopted by the common council at the regular monthly session Tuesday evening. At the present time they are paid at the rate of $7 a day for registration days and $10 for election day. The rate for all five days will now be the flat $10 a day.

The election committee submitted a report designating the polling places for this year's voting and registration. Only one change was made from last year In the Ninth ward the polling place will be in the Gregory building at No 16 Andrew street, instead of the Miller building on Brewster street

Report on City Property.

Mayor Canfield sent in a communication calling attention to the fact the city had acquired title to pieces that the city had acquired title to pieces of property throughout the city at various tax sales He stated that while the city had its money invested in the property it was non-revenue producing and the city was also losing the taxes which would be paid on the property if owned by other parties He suggested that the matter be referred to a committee to report at the next meeting the list of such property with the recommendations as to what disposition to make of the property. The communication was referred to the finance, ways and means committee

Need Lights in Wilbur.

Alderman Purvis of the Thirteenth ward introduced a resolution requesting the board of public works to place a light on Davis street, which runs from Abeel to Wilbur avenue. Referred to that board.

He also introduced a resolution requesting the board of public works to place a light on Gilead street, which was referred to that board.

Who Owns Wilbur Avenue?

"Who owns Wilbur avenue?" asked Alderman Purvis of President Watts after his resolutions had been read and referred.

"It has been open for traffic so long I guess the city owns it," replied President Watts with a smile

"Then the city ought to keep the street repaired," said Alderman Purvis, "for it badly needs it"

The alderman from the Thirteenth also introduced a resolution requesting the board of public works to place gravel over streets in the Thirteenth ward that have been oiled He explained that in other streets in the city when the street was oiled the street department covered it with gravel, and he did not think Wilbur should be neglected when it came to gravel

Steal Abeel Street Railing.

Alderman Purvis introduced a resolution that the board of public works be advised as to the condition of the railing along Abeel street and place it in a safe condition, which was adopted.

The alderman stated that the railing that was placed there is being stolen, and that now teamsters are helping themselves to the posts.

Was a Brief Session.

It was a remarkably brief session and did not last over fifteen minutes when it finally got started. President Watts presided with Aldermen Preston, Roosa, Schick, Schilp, Kelly, Mann, Kirchner, Kullmann, Higgins, Hull and Purvis present.

The absentees were Aldermen Van Valkenburgh and Conelly, who were unable to attend.

Satisfaction in Doing Right.

Imagination is the father and mother of trouble when we let it run loose in a time of stress. But in the end the will and the heart are what determine our fate. After all, when we do right we have some satisfaction even if we suffer. But if we do nothing but drift along we have not even the satisfaction of knowing we deserve to have our right.

WILLOW

Mrs. Walter Hoffman spent Friday with Mrs Preston Hoffman.

Mrs. Hooks has quite a few city guests at present.

Waiting Till After the Show.

The bridegroom was a big, bashful looking county boy. Immediately after the ceremony he disappeared from the parlor, and after a long search was found calmly smoking his pipe in the hay loft in the barn, in his shirt sleeves and his collar off. When asked for an explanation he said: "My collar is so darn high I can't wear it. Tell her I'll wait out here till the show is over and I'll take her home."

Were you ever disappointed with your Home-made Preserves?

Even the best recipe can't make allowances for the way sugar will harden into candy—or for the failure of a jelly to "jell".

Thousands of women are finding the ideal preserving syrup is a blend of ½ Karo (Red Label) with ½ sugar—instead of all sugar. Preserving done this way is always uniform—jelly that really "jells"—jam that is neither too syrupy nor too thick.

This fine, clear Karo Syrup has a natural affinity for the juices of the fruit. It blends the fruit with the sugar—makes your syrup rich and heavy, and holds jams and jellies firm and mellow, with not the slightest tendency to "candy" in the glass.

For Cooking, Baking and Candy Making Karo (Red Label) is used in millions of homes. In all cooking and baking recipes use Karo instead of sugar. It is sweet, of delicate flavor, and brings out the natural flavor of the food.

FREE A book of sixty-eight pages that gives you the best recipes for sure results in preserving. Easy to follow. The Corn Products Cook Book is handsomely illustrated—and it's free. Write us today for it.

HIS FAME SECURE

Emmett Immortalized Himself by Single Song.

Writer of "Dixie" Ranks With Rouget de Lisle, Composer of "La Marseillaise," Most Famous of Martial Hymns.

A man died in Ashtabula, Ohio, recently who has done much to perpetuate the memory of Daniel Decatur Emmett, the man who wrote "Dixie." James Lewis Smith was his name. He was a wealthy bachelor whose fad was building monuments. After his death blueprints of a memorial to American sailors and soldiers who fought in the late war were found on his desk. The monument, however, that will give him lasting fame is the one erected in honor of Emmett, at Mount Vernon, Ohio, where Emmett was born, and where he now lies buried.

Smith's interest in Emmett has brought to light many interesting things about the origin of "Dixie" and about Emmett himself. It is interesting from the viewpoint of how a man may spring into fame almost overnight without knowing just why, and also from the viewpoint of what constitutes a popular song. In after years Emmett said to an old Mount Vernon friend: "If I had known that 'Dixie' was destined to become so popular I would have written it better." But then maybe he might have polished it so much that it would have lost its appeal. Who knows?

In his youth Emmett was a printer. He was a fifer in the army for a while, and then ran away with a circus. Later he helped to organize the first negro minstrel show ever put on in America. This show made a hit in the United States and later had a successful run in England. After his return to the United States Emmett joined a company headed by Dan Bryant. While playing at Mechanics' hall in New York Bryant told Emmett one Saturday that he must have a new "walk around" song for the following Monday's performance. On Sunday Emmett wrote the music and words for "Dixie," which was given for the first time in Mechanics' hall, New York, in 1859, under the title "Dixie's Land." The song was a hit from the word go, and was soon adopted by other traveling companies. In 1860 Miss Susan Denin sang "Dixie" to a great throng in New Orleans, and eventually it spread through the South and became the war song of the Confederate armies.

In 1895 Al G. Field sought him out and the two had a happy time reviewing the past. Field was astonished to find Emmett still playing the fiddle and planning to go on the road again, although he was quite old. Finally Emmett induced Field to take him out for a season. He appeared in Newark, Ohio, on August 23, 1895. He was then eighty, but very vigorous and spry. Ovation after ovation followed him as he traveled through the South.

During his closing days he was helped by a weekly allowance from the Actors' fund of New York. Little or nothing was done to mark his grave, although an organization had been formed for that purpose. Mr. Smith, however, put up a monument at Emmett's grave in Mound View cemetery that is a credit to the man and to the donor.

A curious story brought out in connection with his song is that the original "Dixie's Land" referred to was not the South but an estate on Manhattan island, New York city, owned by a man by the name of Dixie, who employed a large number of colored slaves. These slaves were sent south because of the rising abolition sentiment, and while there they improvised the refrain "I wish I was in Dixie's land," which was once heard by Emmett and became the inspiration of his song. However that may be, "Dixie" is always associated with the South, and had a part in the war in France as a typical American production.

A Hit With the Senoritas.

During the second occupation of Cuba, in 1906-1907, I was stationed as a marine at Palmyra. One day, being sent to Cienfuegos, I obtained permission to wear the blue uniform, as I intended to make a hit with the senoritas. On my way to the station I stepped into some ashes, getting my trousers full of them. After I got into the train I went out on the back platform of the car I was in, took them off, and began to shake them out. The train was going with great speed and the draft promptly snatched the trousers out of my hands, and I landed at Cienfuegos with the fireman's overalls on.—Chicago Journal.

Inquiring Turn of Mind.

Robert who is of a scientific turn of mind had never seen the ocean. Recently he visited Atlantic City with his mother. The day of his arrival was a breezy one and the waves were high. Robert stood on the board walk regarding the sea with interest. Presently he turned to his mother and said: "Don't they ever turn the power off?"

But He Never Will.

"My husband always leaves his business at the office."

"Mine does, too. If he'd only do one other thing he'd be perfect."

"What is that?"

Velvet Always Hits a 3 Baggers

Sight! Smell!! Taste!!!

THEN it's easy to get to the home-plate, right where you snuggle down in an old coat and slippers to enjoy life.

To begin with, Velvet Tobacco, in its jolly red tin, has a wholesome generous look to it. Nothing namby-pamby about it. A red-blooded tin full of red-blooded tobacco, for red-blooded folks.

Open it up—and you get the fragrance that Nature stored in the tobacco during eight changing seasons, while it mellowed in great wooden hogsheads.

And say! It's great! That good, natural fragrance of Kentucky's wonder tobacco—Burley—King of Pipe-land. No camouflage about it. No dolling up.

Pack a pipeload. Light up and you'll get the fragrance of real tobacco—the incense to solid comfort.

And a mild, pleasant taste, that only our Nature-ageing method can impart. You will never taste a finer cigarette than the one you roll with Velvet.

Batter up!

Waiting in Agony.

At a recent wedding the bride was delayed a little in making her appearance. When at last she did appear she breathlessly ran up to the embarrassed bridegroom, who had been waiting for her in agony and putting her arms around his neck exclaimed: "Oh, John, dear, I am so sorry I am late."

GLASCO.

Glasco, Sept. 2.—A son was born in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Messinger on Friday. Congratulations.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church will hold their monthly meeting on Wednesday evening of this week at John W. Lent's.

The Italian people are to have another celebration early next week. Fireworks and dancing will be the principal features.

Unconscious profiteering is a mental disorder from which recovery is slow. Retailers of foodstuffs should guard against its attacks, lest heroic treatment becomes necessary in order to carry on the campaign against the high cost of living.

Glasco people are greatly indebted to the Washburn Bros. Company for village improvements. The streets are kept clean and in good repair, flowers adorn the well kept parks, garbage is collected regularly, all at their expense, and last, but not least the streets are soon to be provided with electric lights. It will take about forty lamps to furnish the principal streets.

Art of Literature.

[illegible] bien dire is but a drawing-room accomplishment unless it is pressed into the service of the truth. The difficulty of literature is not to write but to write what you mean; not to affect your reader but to affect him precisely as you wish. This is commonly understood in the case of books or set orations; even in [illegible] writing an explicit letter, some difficulty is admitted by the world. But one thing you can never make Philistine natures understand; one thing which yet lies on the surface, remains as unseizable to their wits as a high flight of metaphysics—namely, that the business of life is mainly carried on by means of this difficult art of literature, and according to a man's proficiency in that art shall be the freedom and the fullness of his intercourse with other men.—R. L. Stevenson.

Live on the Sunny Side.

There are two classes of people to be met almost daily: the people who live in the shadow and gloom and those who live on the sunny side of the street. The shadowed ones are often called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament, sometimes disagreeable people. Whatever they are their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel [illegible] of them. Most people will not [illegible] their own burdens, but expose all their wounds to others. They are so busy looking down for pitfalls and stepping stones on which to step that they do not know that there are stars in the sky. These people live on the wrong side of the street, and yet, if they would only walk 20 feet to the other sidewalk, where they would feel the warmth of the sun, it would make all the difference to their feelings.

First Harvard-Yale Boat Race.

The annual Harvard-Yale boat race had its beginning in the desire of a young American railroad to advertise itself. A traffic manager conceived the idea that if Lake Winnipesaukee, on the line of the then Concord & Montreal railroad, were selected for a boat race between the two colleges, the event would advertise the railroad and be well worth encouraging, says Christian Science Monitor. Meeting the Yale oarsman one day on the train, he suggested the race, and as a result Yale issued a challenge to Harvard, which Harvard accepted. The railroad company paid the expenses of the crews, and Harvard won the prize, a pair of black walnut sculls, more ornamental than useful, but serving to set in motion what has become a famous intercollegiate sport.

WARN AGAINST TICKET GRAFTERS

Having learned from some experiences of the former block party what to do and what not to do to make a success of such an affair, the committee having the D. A. R. Patriotic block party to be given around the chapter house on Friday evening issues this warning to the people of this community. No tags (tickets) will be sold anywhere on the night of the block party except at the entrances, and then those tickets will be punched so that they cannot be resold. When it was too late to stop the fraud, it was learned at the last block party that some unscrupulous persons begged the tags from the people leaving the grounds and resold them, pocketing a neat sum of money for themselves. It is to avoid a repetition of such a graft game that this warning is issued. The entrance fee of twenty-five cents is certainly small enough, since it includes the charming entertainment and later dancing, for any one to be able to buy a ticket and the block party will be given by and for the D A R and a general community good time, and not to line the pockets of any ticket scalpers such as operated last year.

Another Warning.

Here is another warning. If any person fails to have their fortune told at the gypsy tent where four gypsies secured by Mrs. John Sahler, chairman of this committee, will be encamped, will just have to go blundering through the rest of their lives when they might just as well have the fun and comfort of knowing what to expect in the future. This tent will be located at the gateway entrance to the county grounds directly opposite the chapter house, and undoubtedly even four fortune tellers will be kept busy, for they are exceptionally clever in forecasting the future.

A Fall Display Week.

At a meeting of the retail trade group of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday evening, it was decided to hold a fall display week, the time for which will be announced later. A committee was named to make arrangements for this event.

When the Alabama Went Down.

In 1864, on the nineteenth of June, the battle between the U. S. S. Kearsarge and the Confederate cruiser Alabama took place outside the harbor of Cherbourg, France. The Alabama had been fitted out at Liverpool by agents of the Confederate government for the purpose of destroying the merchant ships of the Federal government. For two years she sailed the seas under command of Captain Semmes, destroying commerce. In June of 1864 the Alabama was lying in the harbor of Cherbourg and the Kearsarge, which had been pursuing her for more than a year, arrived outside the harbor and waited beyond the three-mile limit from the fourteenth to the nineteenth. On Sunday, the nineteenth, the Alabama came out and after a battle lasting two hours the Confederate sank without surrendering.

SIDELIGHTS ON PRIMARY DAY

There developed a fight for the Democratic designation for committeeman Primary Day when Thomas N. Rafferty entered the ring against Frank P. Quigley, one of the Democratic bosses who had charge of selecting the Democratic ticket this fall. Mr. Quigley received 14 votes and Mr. Rafferty 8 votes, the former supervisor winning out by 6 votes.

It would have been a terrific shock to the other leaders of the local Democracy if Mr. Quigley had been dumped.

Coughlin Had Friends.

Thomas F Coughlin, the young attorney, evidently had a few friends working for him on Primary Day for his name was written in 66 times for the designation of district attorney on the Democratic ticket in the city that day. That is the vote he received with the Tenth and Twelfth wards to be heard from. They were the only two wards that had not filed their returns with City Clerk Doremus up to a late hour this morning.

District Attorney F. G. Traver, the Republican designation, received 13 votes on the Democratic ticket, with the two wards mentioned not reported.

There were a few scattering votes for Joseph Coughlin and John Coughlin, evidently intended for Thomas Coughlin, while Milton O. Auchmoody and former recorder Grogan also received a few scattering votes for the designation on the Democratic ticket for district attorney.

For Member of Assembly.

J Francis Hoffman, who announced his desire for the designation for member of assembly on the Democratic ticket received 9 votes with the Tenth and Twelfth wards not heard from. Charles W DuBois received 3 votes for the same designation in the Third ward, but the regular nominee selected by Mr. Quigley. Postmaster DeWitt, and one or two other leaders went through with flying colors.

Chinese Babies.

It is not at all uncommon for the dead bodies of Chinese infants to be cast away, instead of being buried The charitable explanation is that this is done to save burial expenses. The true reason, however, is said to be the deeprooted superstitious belief among them that the death of a baby arises out of punishment to its soul for sins committed in a previous state of existence. It is an accursed creature, whose coffin no one will follow. It is, therefore, a common sight in China to see dying babies laid down by the roadside to breathe their last. The parents will not allow them to die in the house, the belief being that infants, after their death, become wicked spirits. To allow them to die under the parents' roof will bring nothing but evil upon the family.

Waffles

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Dale Morgan had a never-satiated appetite for two things. One was music and the other was waffles. He never got enough of either.

He could have eaten waffles, with butter and maple sirup, three times a day; but he let his good sense guide him sufficiently to cut it down to one.

Usually it was in the evening that he went to McSwenson's cafe to indulge in the delicacy that he craved constantly. They had to be good waffles; they had to be made just right, and McSwenson's was the only place in town that could please him.

For a year or more he had been a patron of the place, and for only two weeks of that period was he dissatisfied with the waffles he obtained.

Dale knew something was wrong the minute the hot, honeycombed cake was set before him. It looked too pale to suit him.

"A new cook making them," he told himself, in tones akin to consternation. "I'll bet Jat's quit her job."

He sampled the waffle and then got up and left it. It didn't taste right.

"Got a new cook?" he inquired of the waiter, and held his breath until the latter answered:

"No: Jat's just gone on a two-week's vacation. She's coming back all right."

So Dale went without waffles for two weeks, and was happy when Jat returned to her post in the kitchen No one else could satisfy the craving of his inner man.

After his evening meal Dale usually went to a musical show, whenever he could find one, which was not often, because the town was small and theatrical attractions not up to a high standard.

Finally he bought a phonograph, and that helped some, although nothing could take the place of a real live musician. He tried to be one himself, but his voice had no more music than a cowbell, and he simply couldn't make his fingers behave on the strings of a violin; much less could he master the art of reading notes.

Came the day when Jat did quit her job at McSwenson's, and that day found sorrow in Dale's heart. Life would never be the same. He searched the town over and finally located a place where he could get waffles that were halfway good, but nowhere nearly as satisfactory as those that Jat had made.

"Why didn't I get acquainted with that girl and marry her?" he asked himself many a time as he bit into a sirup-covered cake and shook his head dismally over the taste of it. "But it wouldn't have worked out right," he would add, "because I've got to have music, too, and can you picture a restaurant cook singing the 'Miserere?'"

Finally Dale outgrew the town and went to the city to try his luck. In his birthplace he had made a fair living as a building contractor, but he had worked hard. In the city he happened to strike it just right, and he accumulated a great deal more money with much less effort. Less than two years after his change he had a small fortune in the bank and a magnificent home on a fashionable street; but there were two things lacking—a companion to share the home and an efficient "waffler." He advertised far and wide, and tried out at least twenty cooks, but none could he find to fill the bill.

Of music there was a plenty. Nearly every night found Dale at a theater, usually one where a musical comedy or grand opera was the attraction. So he was well satisfied on that score.

The fact that his palatial home was a rather desolate place, because there was no one to share it, created a yearning in his heart, and soon he began looking about for some one to make him a suitable wife. He found her in grand opera.

Jessie Fairburn was the prima donna in the Acme Musical Concert company, and she became the object of Dale's admiration—first because of her voice, and second because of her physical charms—from the time his eyes first rested upon her.

Having a friend who knew a man who was well acquainted with the manager of the theater, he contrived to get an introduction, and during the month that the company remained the attraction there he wooed the newfound ideal. At the end of the month the company went on the road, but with a new prima donna. Jessie had consented to occupy the big house with Dale.

Then how that house did resound with music! Jessie also was a motor enthusiast, and Dale bought her a car that she pronounced perfection. Every afternoon she would take a long drive, usually with a woman friend, for Dale seldom could get away from business.

Now there was only one thing needed to make his happiness complete. That necessary element was a cook who could make the right kind of waffles. He continued his search, but his efforts were fruitless.

At last he gave up in disgust. There was only one chance left, and it looked hopeless. He would try making waffles himself.

One afternoon, while his wife was away on a drive, and he had donned up his work sooner than usual, he came, went into the kitchen and secured a cook book, in which he found a recipe that suited his purpose. So he donned an apron and proceeded to cover himself and a share of his surroundings with flour, milk and eggs. But somehow he managed to construct a yellow mass that looked as if it might do.

In the drawer of the cupboard Dale found a small brush, and with this he smeared the waffle iron thoroughly with grease. The brush was an old one, however, and a number of the bristles played truant and stuck to the irons.

After painstakingly picking off the vagrant bristles, during which operation he burned two fingers, he took the pitcher and poured a heavy coat of batter on the lower iron. It began to sizzle, and he clamped the other iron down quickly. From between the two at once emerged a sticky mass that spread itself generously over the sides of the irons, finding its way into the gas flame, which it threatened to extinguish.

He turned the irons quickly, as the directions admonished him to do, and lifted one and peered inside. There was a waffle in the making, sure enough, but it was a sad specimen. He left it a moment, then essayed to turn it again, but in some manner the irons became separated and the half-baked cake slid gracefully into the fire.

Dale stood with his hands on his hips, his face flecked with batter and raged However, he was still determined, and as there was considerable batter left in the pitcher, he set to work again.

This time he exercised more prudence and put only a small dab on the iron. It proved to be enough to cover little more than one-quarter of the surface when it had been pressed out.

He tried to add more, and while so doing he let the top iron fall to the floor, where it narrowly missed his foot. He recovered it and proceeded to clean it In the meantime the batter he had left on the other half of the apparatus burned to a crisp

"What's going on?" inquired a voice, and he saw his wife standing in the door, a perplexed look on her face.

"I'm trying to make waffles," he explained. "I've kept it a dark secret from you, but I'm just desperate to eat a good waffle."

She chased him from the kitchen.

"Go and clean up," she ordered, "and I'll try my hand at the business. But don't you dare come near. I'll have to straighten things up and make some new batter."

Half an hour later Dale was called to dinner, and when he sat down at the table he found a nice, plump, brown, steaming waffle confronting him, while more were in process of making. With trepidation he bit into it, after spreading it with butter and sirup

"Fine!" he cried, as he slowly swallowed the morsel. "That's the best waffle I ever had."

She smiled sweetly at him from the stove and turned the irons.

"Of course, you'd have to say that," she said, "even if it killed you"

He tried another mouthful, this time with more confidence.

"I repeat my assertion," he declared, as he cut another piece for transfer to his mouth. "Where in the world, Jessie, did you ever learn it? I know of only one other woman in the world that can make them, and she used to work at McSwenson's, back in my home town."

She was laughing.

"That's where I used to make them," she told him.

HAS GEYSERS OF ALL KINDS

No Display Like That in the Yellowstone Can Be Found in All the World.

Perhaps there have been greater geyser basins somewhere in the prehistoric past. There may be greater still to come; one or two promising possibilities are in Alaska, writes Robert Sterling Yard, in "The Book of the National Parks." But for the lapse of geologic time in which man has so far lived, Yellowstone has cornered the world's geyser market. There are only two other places where one may enjoy the spectacle of large geysers. One of these is New Zealand and the other Iceland; but both displays combined cannot equal Yellowstone's either in the number or the size of the geysers.

Yellowstone has dozens of geysers of many kinds. They range in size from the little spring that spurts a few inches every minute to the monster that hurls hundreds of feet in the air every six or eight weeks. Many spout at fairly regular intervals of minutes or hours or days. Others are notably irregular, and those include most of the largest. Old Faithful won its name and reputation by its regularity: it is the only one of the group of monsters which lives up to its time-table. Its period ranges from intervals of about 65 minutes, in seasons following winters of heavy snow, to 59 or 55 minutes in seasons following winters of light snow.

Minister Recovered.

The minister was visiting the Macphersons, and was asked to stay to dinner.

The party sat down, and before commencing his meal the minister bowed his head over his plate to say grace.

Master Jack, seeing this, at once remarked:

"It's all right, mister, the meat's quite fresh."

Outspoken Athenian.

More than twenty-three hundred years ago a young Athenian, speaking of his wife, said to Socrates: "When I saw that she had powder on her face to make it whiter and rouge to make it redder, and that she wore high-heeled shoes to appear taller, I told her it was as dishonorable for her to try to deceive me about her beauty as for me to try to deceive her about my property. I added that, although her arts might impose upon others, they could not impose upon me, who saw her at all times."—Youth's Companion.

Austria Gets Terms.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Paris, Sept. 3.—Chancellor Karl Renner, head of the Austrian peace delegation, is today en route for Vienna with the final and revised peace terms which were presented to him by Paul Dutasta on behalf of the council late yesterday. There was no ceremony. The treaty was accompanied by a covering letter treating the various points that the Austrians had raised. Five days were given to Austria to reply.

DIED.

[illegible], on Tuesday, September 2, 1919, William Carney, beloved husband of Jennie Keyser, at his residence, 59 West Union street.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral, which will be held from the late residence on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Montrepose Cemetery.

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

Sergeant Earl B. DeWitt of the enlisted personnel of camp examining board of Camp Dix, N. J., has returned to camp after spending the week end and Labor Day at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levan DeWitt, Henry street.

William Hoffman of Willow, who spent nearly a year in service across in the 59th Pioneers has been spending a few days with his friends, James and Preston DeWitt, of Henry street, having received his honorable discharge a short time ago.

W. H. Astle of this city has written Mayor Canfield that he is about to be sent to Siberia for service. He enlisted in the army at Kingston on May 24th, 1917. At that time he resided at No. 108 North Front street, and employed by E. S. Craft, then manager of the Union Pacific Tea Company. He was sent away on the following day and saw service for twenty-two months on the other side with the Second Division. He is now at Taylor, Pennsylvania with his regiment. They had a celebration and parade there on Tuesday and Thursday another will be held for them at Allentown, Pennsylvania, where the whole division will parade. He states that he would like to pay dear old Kingston a visit he leaves for overseas, for the land of ice and snow, but will be unable to do so. He was very desirous of having one of Kingston's medals to take with him and Mayor Canfield immediately sent him one. He expressed his regret at not being able to participate in the welcome celebration, but desired to give his best wishes to all the other boys who were in the service from here. First Class Private Astle was cited for valor in bringing wounded from the battle field in face of heavy fire.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Surprise Birthday Party.

A surprise birthday party was given at the Hollmann Cottage, Rosendale, N. Y., in honor of Miss Judith Fried on the evening of September first. The decorations were prettily arranged in pink and white. All the guests at the house participated in the singing and dancing, in which the evening was passed. Refreshments were served at midnight. A Jack Horner pie, containing an amusing variety of favors, a large birthday cake decorated with candles and flowers adorned the table.

Birthday Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Fred Oldenburg of 34 Gill street on Tuesday evening on the occasion of his 44th birthday. Seventy five relatives and friends made the evening an enjoyable one with games, duets and other music. Miss Laura Ostrander, Elizabeth Kerr and Mrs. Romaine presiding at the piano. At 12 o'clock a supper march was played by Miss Ostrander and all took their places at the tables where a bounteous repast awaited them, following which they departed for their homes wishing Mr. Oldenburg many more such happy birthdays.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A good deal of the trouble of this world arises from the fact that some folks like to have gardens, while others prefer to keep hens.—Nixon Waterman.

THREE MEALS A DAY.

To plan meals three times a day for a family, trying to serve the food that is pleasing, keeping one's bills within the limit and providing a variety, and having the day's food well balanced, is the task of 20,000,000 cooks in this land of ours; a task which takes real training and practice to be successful.

Cream Peach Cake.—Bake a layer cake and for the filling add a cupful of very ripe peaches put through a ricer to sweetened whipped cream that is flavored with almond.

Coffee Junket.—For a dessert which is wholesome and easy to prepare as well as dainty to serve, junket stands at the head. Take one junket tablet, crush and dissolve in a tablespoonful of water, then add to a quart of lukewarm milk. Reserve half a cupful of the milk and pour boiling hot over two tablespoonfuls of coffee, let stand until well infused, then strain and cool before adding to the milk. If the milk is heated too hot the junket will not thicken the milk. Serve with whipped cream on the top of the glass.

Lamb Cutlets.—Cook eight lamb chops on one side until well browned; turn and on the cooked side place a teaspoonful of seasoned cooked macaroni. Cover with buttered crumbs and let cook in the oven about eight minutes. Creamed peas served in a thick white sauce may be used instead of the macaroni, which will make a most tasty dish.

Ice Cream in Case.—Bake an angel cake in a round deep tin and when cold, cut out the center leaving a thick shell to hold vanilla ice cream and serve at once.

Cherry Ice Cream.—This is both good to look at and better to eat. Use a cupful of rich cherry juice and a pint of cream with a few drops of almond extract. Sweeten to taste and freeze as usual. Serve in sherbet cups and garnish with a cherry or a spoonful of minced cherries with some of the sirup.

In the Spotlight.

I invited a friend to go with me to my country home during the hot weather, and we arrived there on the hottest night of the season. Tired from our journey, we retired early, and after a vain endeavor to sleep my father suggested a ride in his car. We sneaked out of the house and into the car, clad only in our "nighties" and slippers. After a run of a mile the car stopped dead under an electric light swarming with all forms of insect life. A thunderstorm was brewing and my father manfully cranked, cussed, and perspired—all to no avail. A night watchman in a nearby factory saw our dilemma and came to our rescue by calling a taxi, and two extremely embarrassed young women made a swift transit from one car to the other under the full glare of the spotlight.—Chicago Tribune.

John Goes Alone.

John was a tightwad but Mary was unaware of the fact until one evening when he had asked her to attend the theater with him. Upon arriving at the theater John stepped up to the box office and purchased one ticket and called out to Mary, waiting close by in the lobby, "Mary, here's where you buy your ticket; I've got mine." A titter passed through the waiting crowd and as John had to attend the performance alone while Mary with a crimson face lost herself in the crowd.

ADVANTAGE ALL WITH DAVID

Modern Military Men Have Figured That Goliath Never Had a Chance to Win.

Popular sympathy has always been on the side of David in his little bickering with the Giant Goliath. It ought to be quite the other way, because there never was a minute when Goliath had a chance against an agile antagonist who could choose his own position and distance, and who was equipped with a long-range weapon.

This is a problem which has been thoroughly worked out by modern military men and naval tacticians. A fight of the kind can have only one result.

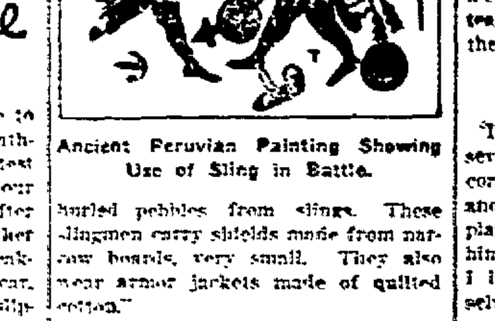

We are accustomed to think of the sling as an old-world weapon, but there is no question of the fact that it was in common use among the natives of Mexico, Central America and Peru long before Goliath and David were born.

Dr. Philip A. Means has been looking up the subject for the Smithsonian institution, and he says that the early Spanish conquerors in America found the sling a formidable weapon in the hands of the aborigines.

A Spanish historian, Del Castillo, describing a battle with Mexican natives, writes: "As we approached with our army they shot from above so many stones that they covered the ground. They had slings and plenty of stones, and they shot arrows and stones so fast that they wounded five of our foot soldiers and two horsemen."

In Peru have been dug up many ancient vessels that bear paintings illustrative of combats in which slings were used.

Xeres, another Spanish historian, describing the capture of a Peruvian city, says of the native troops: "In the van of their army came the slingmen, who hurled pebbles from slings. These slingmen carry shields made from narrow boards, very small. They also wear armor jackets made of quilted cotton."

Many of the actual slings used by early and even prehistoric Americans have been obtained from graves or otherwise recovered. They are made of various materials including human hair, wool, llama hair and vegetable fiber.

Men Say Women Are Curious.

Men say women are "curious"—that to get a woman's curiosity aroused is a sure way to start something. Yet, says a bulletin that has been issued by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, thousands of men sent money recently to a Texas man who advertised some literature "for men only." Men wrote from everywhere. They fairly swamped the advertiser with mail.

And what did they get? They got stung, just as they so richly deserved. They got a bunch of pictures of men riding wild western horses—innocent pictures, such as a man, woman or child would enjoy.

It might seem poetic justice to allow a man who would answer such an advertiser to continue to get the stinger, but the post office department, as soon as the matter came to its attention, issued an order against such an use of the mails.

Wild Race Is Promised.

The Nomad learns that one of the features of the coming out of the New England Amateur association, to be held at Salem Willows, will be a toad race. F. H. Sidney's two homing toads will be carried from Wakefield to the Willows by auto and liberated there. The two toads are "Teddy," the homing toad that hopped from Charlestown to Wakefield in a single night, and "Pete," who has just returned from France, where he spent 21 months as a mascot of the Fourteenth engineers. Someone will be on hand to time the winner when he reaches the Sidney home at Valley View, Wakefield, on top of the hill in Wakefield park.—Boston Transcript.

The Reform of a Poet.

Harry Kemp, "tramp poet," who left Kansas university ten years ago to figure in many escapades in the East and finally to become a successful poet and playright in New York, has advertised in a Lawrence paper a request asking his creditors of earlier days to get together their old bills that they may take them to a dinner he will give there shortly. After the dinner he promises to pay all his old debts. As the old hymn has it: "While the lights hold out to burn, sinful poets may return."—Detroit Free Press.

His Occupation.

"They put the returned soldier at the clockmaker's to putting figures on the dials."

"Then he must have felt at home marking time."

Too Good.

"There is such a thing as trying to do too much," said a certain senator recently. "Very often we are overzealous and hand out too much of a good thing. Like the little girl who found her home lesson in arithmetic too much for her. So she asked her big brother to help her out. This he did, and handed the child the entire bunch of sums each neatly and correctly done. The child looked them over thoughtfully. 'What's wrong?' asked big brother in surprise. 'Nothing,' replied the child, 'only,' and she hesitated, 'only couldn't you make one or two mistakes, so teacher would be sure to know I did them?'"

He Saw Very Well.

"I had employed a piano tuner for several years who was blind, writes a correspondent. One day he brought another man when he came to tune the piano, asking my permission to teach him some things about piano tuning. I left them in the parlor by themselves and when they had finished, I was dressing to go out.

Knowing they were blind and rather than keep them waiting, I went in to pay the tuner in rather scant attire. I remarked to the stranger, "It is nice for you blind people that there is work like this for you to do."

"Oh, madam," he replied, "I'm not blind; in fact, I see very well."

I nearly died and fled from the room.

From a One-Armed Man.

The triumph over the disability of a lost limb is not only exemplified in the case of the one-legged cricketer. "There is no need to be downhearted about a lost leg or arm," writes a correspondent. "I have lost my left arm and can do practically everything that a man with two arms can.

"I can tie my tie as neatly and quickly as I ever did, lace my boots, ride a horse and bicycle, drive a horse and trap, drive a motor, play billiards (using a block of weighted wood with three grooves in it as a rest), golf, hockey, tennis and swim quite easily."—London Chronicle.

HANDICAP IN LOSS OF EYE

Said to Depend Largely on Time of Life at Which the Accident Occurred.

What actual disability is involved in the loss of one eye? Accident insurance companies usually estimate it at 50 per cent, but Sir Arthur Pearson told the British committee on the administration of soldiers' and sailors' pensions that this was absolutely absurd, and suggested 25 per cent as a more reasonable estimate.

It depends largely upon the time of life at which the eye is lost. By binocular vision, says the Lancet, we fuse two slightly dissimilar images of an object, which are focussed upon the two retinas, and this enables us to estimate correctly the relative position or distance of objects. This power, however, is not confined to those of us who possess two good eyes. The man who has been blind in one eye from infancy possesses it in almost equal perfection with the possessor of two eyes. For many other factors unite to compensate for the absence of stereoscopic vision. These are atmospheric and shadow effects, parallax and, above all, memory of what the shape of objects really is, according to knowledge which has been acquired in early years, largely by the sense of touch.

On the other hand, if one who possesses this faculty is suddenly deprived of it he will be considerably handicapped; especially at first. A woman may find she cannot pour from a teapot into a cup without spilling the tea. A hammerman may take some time before he can hit the nail on the head with his former accuracy; indeed, whether or not he can ever attain it again is doubtful.

WASTE COUNTRY MADE RICH

Enormous Rubber Plantation in Sumatra Developed by American Industry in Ten Years.

Perhaps the most surprising thing about the enormous rubber plantation that covers nearly 100,000 acres in Sumatra, recently described by a writer in Commerce and Finance, is that less than ten years ago one could have traveled these acres without seeing a rubber tree. The land was acquired by an American company, and the rubber trees followed. Today they count up to something like 5,000,000, tended by an army of about 16,000 laborers, most of whom come from the neighboring island of Java. The land rises to a slight eminence overlooking the sea of rubber trees which stretches for miles in every direction, with here and there glimpses of the fine roads over which motor cars travel the plantation on business or carry passengers between the bungalows of the estate managers. Sixty-five miles of narrow-gauge railway run through this remarkable rubber forest, with every tree raised in response to the twentieth century commercial demand for rubber.

Newspaper Men "Struck."

Probably the first "strike" ever called at a convention of the American Federation of Labor, and against that body, was called by the newswriters assigned to cover the sessions. During the course of the convention one of the delegates made criticisms of the way in which the convention news was handled. The newspaper men immediately filed out of the hall and sent word to the convention that they had gone on strike. While certain delegates were branding the newswriters as "bolsheviki," others insisted that they form a committee and present their demands. The demands were formulated and presented. The convention granted them by acclamation, and the reporters were given an ovation when they filed back to their desks. So it was settled.

Tuskless Elephants.

An elephant without tusks seems almost impossible, yet in Ceylon the male elephants have no tusks at all; they have miserable little grubbers projecting two or three inches from the upper jaw and inclining downwards. Nothing produces either ivory or horn in fine specimens throughout Ceylon. Although some of the buffaloes have tolerably fine heads, they will not bear a comparison with those of other countries. The horns of the native cattle are not above four inches in length. The elk's and the spotted deer's antlers are small compared with deer of their size in India. This is the more singular, as it is evident from the geological formation that at some remote period Ceylon was not an island, but formed a portion of the mainland. It is thought that there must be elements wanting in the Ceylon pasturage for the formation of ivory.

Valuable Brazilian Plant.

The carnauba palm of Brazil like the bamboo of Asia, serves varied purposes. Young leaves are coated with the wax that was in such war demand and is normally made into candles and gramophone records. Older leaves yield a good fiber, which is prized for mats, hats and hammocks. They also form roofs for cabins or huts, and the trunk supplies timber for the structures and for fine cabinet work. The root is employed in medicine. The tree's fruit is food for man and farm stock, another plant part supplies a kind of sago, the seeds are not only rich in oil, but are roasted as a coffee substitute, and young leaves are eaten like cabbage. A nutritive portion of the pith is fermented into a pleasing drink.

Why Called "Oven Bird."

Do you know how the oven bird got its name? Well, it was because its nest built among the leaves or pine needles on the ground is arched and of an oven-like appearance, says the American Forestry association. Washington. You do not see the oven bird sitting on the topmost twig of a tree like some other members of the feathery tribe, but he sticks close to the ground, mounting to the lower branches of a tree only to sing or to scold an intruder. The song of the oven bird somewhat resembles the word "teacher."

Electric Welding.

Three methods of electric welding are now generally employed. In "spot" welding the metals are placed in contact and an electric current is sent between them; in "seam" or "line" welding mechanically driven roller electrodes are used, and in the "carbon arc" process—in which an iron pencil has replaced the carbon rod—the metal is melted by the electric arc. In shipbuilding thick steel plates are more profitably joined than by riveting. In butt welds the tensile strength is 90 to 95 per cent of that of the solid plates.

Where Pearls Abound.

On some of the islands lying to the north and east of Australia, inhabited by natives who still practice cannibalism, stories of valuable pearls are not infrequently found by daring white traders, even to this day. Natives often part with their collections of gems in exchange for mere trifles, particularly for things that they can use for personal adornment. In the New Hebrides, the Solomon Islands and in some parts of the Fiji group pearls are still obtained in considerable quantities by natives. These divers perform wonderful feats. It is not unusual for them to bring up shells from a depth of 120 feet, and it is an ordinary thing for them to work in water 30 to 35 feet deep. They do this without diving equipment of any kind.

MAIL SERVICE BY AIR IS SUCCESS

Postoffice Department Says It Has Speeded Delivery All Over the Country.

EXTENSION BEING PLANNED

New Routes Will Link Up St. Louis and Omaha to Speed Up Deliveries to and From the Pacific Coast.

Washington, D. C.—Records for transportation of mail along the eastern seaboard and from New York city west are being established daily by the airplane mail service which now is well along toward its fifteenth month of existence. The service, according to Otto Praeger, second assistant postmaster general, who is in charge, has speeded mail delivery all over the country.

Letters mailed in New York city or arriving there from New England before eight o'clock in the morning are sent by airplane so far as possible, insuring their delivery in Washington by noon. Those for Washington are sent out on the first mail delivery in the afternoon and those intended for cities farther south are forwarded in earlier trains than otherwise would be possible.

The same is true of the New York-Chicago airplane mail route. The time from New York to Chicago is cut down to between nine and ten hours. There is a corresponding saving on mail from Chicago and western cities intended for New York.

There are two airplane mail routes in the country, one between Washington and New York city and the other between New York city and Chicago by way of Cleveland.

Air Service to Be Extended.

Flights are made in both directions over these routes every day, with such success that the postoffice department is about to institute other routes which will link up Omaha, Neb., and St. Louis, Mo. These latter routes are to be opened almost immediately, to care for the volume of mail and to assist in quick deliveries to and from the Pacific coast.

Airplane mail service started on May 15, 1918, largely as an experiment, with a route between New York city and Washington. Two trips a day had been arranged, one in each direction. The first flight from Washington was a spectacular affair in which President Wilson and other officials figured prominently, and sent letters just before the aviator started. Since that time the service has continued without interruption.

Postage for airplane mail at the time was fixed at fifteen cents an ounce, the postoffice department figuring that speedy delivery made that price fair. In addition to being carried by airplane the letter was to be specially delivered which ordinarily costs ten cents in addition to letter postage.

Airplane mail service continued on a paying basis for a time, until the novelty wore off. Many persons at first used the airplane mail for its novelty, and the letters carried were unimportant, apparently. At any rate, after a few months, the sale of airplane stamps dwindled, as did the mail.

Reduction in Rate.

Then the postoffice department decided to fill the pouches when possible with ordinary first class letters. This was continued until July 18, when the rate for airplane postage was reduced from fifteen cents to two. It is probable now that this rate will be continued, for while the service does not pay for itself the added facilities in deliveries are regarded by the postoffice department as worth the price.

When the service was started the postoffice department co-operated with the war department, which supplied the airplanes and the aviators. This arrangement had been suggested by the chief signal officer of the army, who saw in the project an additional means of training aviators for the western front.

Army participation continued until last November, when it was agreed for the sake of efficiency that the entire project should be taken over by the postoffice department.

For this reason the service now is entirely in the hands of the postoffice department and the aviators are of civilian status. However, the pilots now engaged in the work have come largely from the army, being officers discharged from the service at the end of the war.

The type of airplane used is the ordinary Curtiss machine, but the postoffice department is preparing and, if congress provides the funds, will soon put especially built airplanes at work.

These new airplanes are designed primarily for carrying mail, stabilized automatically, so that there is no danger of a crash. In this regard they will be different from the army type machine, in which ability to maneuver rapidly is an element of safety. The mail airplanes will be designed to carry a heavy load with safety.

Muskrats Destroy Mill Dam.

Watertown, N. Y.—Muskrats digging a hole in a dam erected in 1881-1882 have forced the Seeber and Chapman grist mill at Adams to close. The dam had withstood the ravages of time, but succumbed to the attacks of the rats.

DROMEDARY AND CAMELS.

"The Camel Cousins, Campbell Camel and Cousin Camel, are busy looking their worst because the summer is here," said the Dromedary with the single hump.

The Camel Cousins hadn't heard that remark, but they saw that the Dromedary was talking.

"Hello, Drom," said Campbell.

"Hello, Dary," said Cousin Camel.

"Please say 'E' too."

The Camel Cousins looked at each other, very much puzzled.

"I am a dromedary," said the Dromedary. "So you shouldn't say 'Drom' and 'Dary' without somewhere putting in an 'E'. Don't you see—Dromedary?"

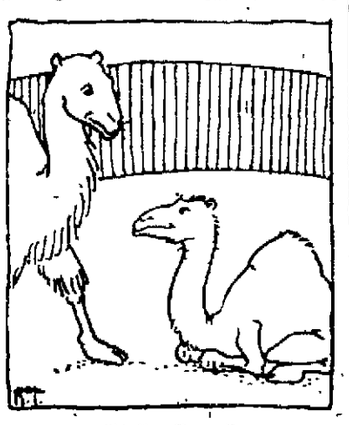

"Yes, we see a dromedary," laughed Campbell Camel.

"Yes, we see you, and you're one," grinned Cousin Camel.

"Foolish pair," said the Dromedary. "Well, no matter I don't believe the letter E will be hurt for I was kind to it. I didn't leave it out in the cold."

"Leave what out in the cold?" asked Campbell Camel. "I am sure lots of creatures would like to be left out in the cold these warm days."

"Yes, and our busy season is beginning," said Cousin Camel. "We're

"You wouldn't give them rides anywhere else but on your backs, would you?" asked the Dromedary.

"I don't believe we would," said Campbell Camel.

"You wouldn't give them rides on your ears, would you?" asked the Dromedary.

"No, we wouldn't," said Cousin Camel without a smile.

"Nor would we give them rides on our toes," said Campbell Camel. "Yes, the Dromedary is right. We give them rides on our backs and nowhere else."

"I don't believe a king or a queen or a president or a governor or even a teacher could think up any other way of carrying people," he ended.

"Why does a teacher so especially interest you?" asked the Dromedary.

"A teacher teaches," said Campbell Camel. "Anyone who can teach would have to know everything to teach!"

"Oh," said the Dromedary, "you're a foolish pair in your talk, in your thoughts and in your looks. You're beautiful in the winter when you have few visitors and in the summer you're sights, awful sights."

"Well," said Campbell Camel from his ward, "if you hadn't added that one word I would not have had the least idea just which way to take you."

"I don't know what word you mean," said the Dromedary, "but I do know that I do not wish to be taken by you anywhere at all, or in anyway or fashion."

"I wasn't going to take you away," said Campbell Camel.

"But you said something about it," said the Dromedary.

"I said that if you hadn't used one word I wouldn't have known how to have taken you—or, in other words, to have understood you."

"Oh, that's different," said the Dromedary. "Well, what was the one word which made so much difference?"

"You said first that in the summer we were sights. Now I wouldn't have known whether you thought we were beautiful without our fine coats, or what, until you said that in the summer we were awful sights, and that made it quite clear to me." The camel grinned foolishly and chewed from side to side.

"Of course, as we said the other day," Campbell Camel continued, "we are so silly that that is why we do things in such a queer way."

"Now I have no long hair at all," said the Dromedary.

"Poor dear," said the Camel.

"I'm not a deer, I'm a dromedary—both begin with D but that is about all."

"Oh, you don't understand," said Campbell Camel, "and I'm too silly a creature to be able to explain anything at all!"

May Be Right.

A teacher was telling her class little stories in natural history and she asked if anyone could tell her what a grounding was. Up went a little hand, waving frantically.

"Well, Tommy, you may tell us what a grounding is."

Fortune Telling by Bones.

It is strange that in the Transvaal the belief in Kaffir doctors and their wizardry has not died out. Nearly every old Kaffir has always with him a bag of bones—knuckles and joints of animals. With these he pretends to be able to foretell the future. He throws the "dolos," as they are called, and then reads out the omens. Should a white man wish to confer with the oracle, he must throw the bones himself. Many white men firmly believe in the ability of the Kaffir doctor to cure them from sundry ills, and in Rhodesia there have been many cases where the Kaffir doctors have saved whites from the ravages of the terrible fevers that rage there, in addition to coping successfully with toothache and other ills.

The Oriental Paradox.

A curious feature in the rhetoric of the oriental bard is the employment of what may be called figures of impossibility—or the paradox. Their pages furnish copious and surprising examples of this. A man who follows vice instead of virtue, folly rather than wisdom, is one who painfully turns up the barren sand with a golden plow, to sow weeds; he mows a forest of Jigaum-vitae trees with a crystal scythe; he puts a jeweled vase on a sandalwood fire to cook a dish of husks or pebbles; he devastates a beautiful date garden to plant nettles there instead of palms. . . . "It is written in the sky, on the pages of the air, that good deeds shall be done to him who does good deeds to others."—William R. Alger.

The Sea.

Shakespeare tells us there is a tide in the affairs of men. Certainly there is a tide in the minds of men. He must be very unobservant of himself who does not know that the mind rises and falls, that it swells into fullness and strength and then fades into emotions and weakness. We know not how, we know not why.—Theophilus Parsons.

ACCORD CHURCH CLAMBAKE SEPT. 10

Rochester, Sept. 3.—The people of this town and adjoining ones are looking forward with joyous anticipation to Wednesday, September 10th, when the annual clambake under the auspices of the Reformed Church of Accord, will be held, at the grounds on the state road. If it rains that day or evening the bake will be served on the next fair day. As has been the custom in order that all who come may enjoy the bake there will be three bakes opened, one at 5, and others at 7 and 9 p. m. There will be full and plenty for all as the church people furnish home raised chicken, corn, potatoes and even watermelon, the clams and fish being selected and sent from New York by a former town of Rochester man who is engaged in that line of business, and because of this assistance the church people are enabled to serve the bakes at $1.25 the plate. Last year nearly 100 men and women from Kingston attended the Accord Church clambake.

GOVERNOR MAY BE HERE OCT. 1

To Be Asked, With Other Officials, to Take Part in Welcome to Ulster Soldiers—Plans Include Parade, Banquet, Speeches and Dances.

The welcome home celebration to be given Ulster county soldiers, sailors and nurses in this city on October 1, will be an all day affair, according to plans made by the welcome home celebration committee at the city hall Tuesday evening. The celebration will begin with a monster parade at 11 o'clock in the morning in which it is expected nearly 1,500 returned soldiers, sailors and nurses will participate. Following the parade, a banquet will be served to all those from this county who were in the service at the armory. Athletic games and speeches by prominent persons at Forsyth Park will figure in the afternoon's program. It is expected that in the evening a dance will be tendered the soldiers, sailors and nurses by Company M at the armory.

Invite Prominent Persons.

Invitations will be sent to Governor Alfred E. Smith, Adjutant General Berry and Major General O'Ryan and other prominent persons. A reviewing stand will be erected at the city hall where these prominent personages will review the parade. It is also hoped to have Governor Smith deliver an address at Forsyth Park in the afternoon.

Atkins, Grand Marshal.

The members of the committee present at the meeting were Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., D. G. Atkins Captain Everett Fowler, Sydney D. M. Hudson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, W. C. Kingman, John E. Mahar, and William C. Dugan, Mayor Canfield presided, and Mr. Hudson acted as secretary. On motion of Captain Fowler it was decided to hold the celebration on October 1 with a parade at 11 o'clock in the morning, a banquet following in the Armory, games sports, and speeches at Forsyth Park in the afternoon. The matter of the parade, the formation and the line of march was left in the hands of D. G. Atkins who was named Grand Marshal, while the invitation committee was instructed to issue invitations to all lodges, labor organizations, fire companies etc., to take part in the parade.

Aviators May Come.

Captain Fowler also moved that Mayor Canfield endeavor to secure one or more aviators to come here with their machines on the day of the celebration and give exhibitions. The captain stated that the Kingston Fair Ground Association offered the use of its grounds in the rear of Washington and Hurley avenues for this purpose. Mayor Canfield also called attention to the fact that the U. S. Destroyer Tucker was scheduled to be at Kingston Point on this day. The destroyer was secured through the efforts of Commander Andrew Hickey, a Kingston boy.

Prizes For Sports.

A committee will also make arrangements to induce merchants and other people in town to offer prizes in the games and athletic stunts to be "run off" in the afternoon. Merchants will also be asked to close their places of business during the time of the parade, and the entire city will be called upon to decorate in honor of the young men and women who are being honored.

The next meeting of the committee will be held next Monday night, at which further details will be arranged.

Labor Day Rush Showed Need of Sleightsburgh Bridge—It Was Too Bad Commissioner Greene Could Not Have Tried to Cross Ferry That Day.

"Well did you cast your vote as an American citizen Primary Day?" asked the customer with a grin this morning.

"Nope," replied the busy barber, "for the simple reason that I would not be allowed to vote, and so did not try."

"How is that?" asked the customer, surprised.

"I did not enroll last year," replied the barber, "for I was laid up with the flu at the time and could not get to the polls."

"That's so too," retorted the customer, "and there were a number of others barred on the same grounds."

"Well we did not miss much," said the barber, "and judging from the vote interest was very slight."

"That was because there were but a very few contests" replied the barber.

"Maybe," said the barber doubtfully.

"That certainly was some rush Labor Day," said the customer, changing the subject.

"You said it," replied the barber, "and it was the best argument in favor of the building of the Sleightsburgh bridge that has occured."

"It would have been a better one," replied the customer "if Highway Commissioner Greene had been passing through Kingston that day and was in a hurry to cross over on the Skillypot"

"Now you said something," agreed the barber.

"Well," said the customer "we have his promise anyway to build the bridge."

"Yes," retorted the barber, "and promises are like the weather reports."

"How is that?" asked the customer.

"Can't be depended upon," replied the customer.

Harvest and Mission Festival.

The annual harvest and mission festival of the Spring Street German Lutheran Church will be held Thursday evening, September 18. Rev. Dr. E. F. Bachmann, rector of the Lutheran Deaconess House at Philadelphia, will deliver the sermon. The service will be in English. Following the service the fruit and vegetables donated by the farmers and gardeners of the congregation will be exhibited and sold in the school hall.

Lonely Britisher.

Living on an island belonging to the Paumotu archipelago, a French possession in mid-Pacific, many thousands of miles from the Australian continent, is Edward Davies, who claims the distinction of being the loneliest Britisher. There are only three other white men on the island, which is 40 miles long and 21 miles broad, but these are three Frenchmen. Hundreds of miles to the southward of New Zealand are the Macquarie islands, on one of which two men manipulate a wireless service to Australia. Their small habitation is the only one on the island, which has no trees or shrubs, no grass, harbors and very little sunshine, being bitterly cold and most desolate. Their only companions are penguins. It is the most southern abode in the world for a Briton.

Mutt and Jeff's Dream Tonight at Opera House.

Enough action to suit the most strenuously inclined will be found in "The Final CloseUp," Shirley Mason's new picture, which was directed by Walter Edwards and which will be shown at Keeney's tonight at 7 and 9. Those vod-a-vil movies are on the program for tonight and Keeney's will be packed as these pictures which are shown every week are a riot. Gaumont News, Literary Digest and Pathe Review, those slow motion pictures, are also other attractions tonight. Tomorrow and Friday D. W. Griffith's supreme triumph, "True Heart Susie," will be presented at Kingston's Palace of Amusement.

Opera House.

A show that is strictly out of the ordinary is promised as the attraction at the opera house tonight at 8:15. It is "Mutt and Jeff's Dream," that most perennial and enduring of all musical farces. The play is entirely new with up to date material and popular prices.

Auditorium.

Madge Evans in "Home Wanted," at the Auditorium tonight, is one of the many excellent offerings at this popular show house and one that is bound to please the whole family. Billy Parson's comedy and Pathe News will also be shown today. Tomorrow Louis Bennison in another wild west photoplay, "High Pockets."

Orpheum.

New faces are to be seen in support of Charlie Chaplin in "Sunnyside," his newest million dollar comedy, which has been released by First National Exhibitors' Circuit, and which will be seen at the Orpheum Theater today.

Gold Soaks Through Rock.

Not many years ago everyone believed in the "marine" theory of gold. In other words, gold was originally deposited in reefs by the action of sea water, and the fine, placer gold, which is the cause of all big "gold rushes," is simply gold reef washed into dust by weather and by water. The newer idea is that mineralizing solutions—carrying up gold from the depths—have risen along the planes of least resistance, and that the gold has thus been deposited in the reefs and rocks where it is found. That gold does soak through rock is proved beyond doubt. In certain old mines in Australia which were abandoned many years ago and have since been reopened, not only have the rock deposits been found to be richer than they were thirty or forty years ago, but also the old beams and timbers have been found to be impregnated with gold.

Humor in a Dictionary.

Johnson's dictionary, says the latest writer on the life of Mr. Boswell's "illustrious friend," often expressed his personal prejudices and point of view. He enjoyed having a "dig" at Scotland, and so when he defined "oats" he wrote, "a grain which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people." In defining "lexicographer," he looked humorously at himself, and set down "a maker of dictionaries, a harmless drudge;" and Grub street he described as "the name of a street in London, much inhabited by writers of small histories, dictionaries and temporary poems." And his definition of "network" as "anything reticulated or decussated at equal distances, with interstices between the intersections," became famous as a definition needing more definitions to define it.—Christian Science Monitor.

Donkeys Wear the Trousers.

There is one spot in Europe where the women have not yet taken to imitating male attire, but the donkeys have. Visitors to La Rochelle usually take a trip across to the Ile de Rhe, which is about two miles from the mainland. Nothing in the island impresses them more than the donkeys. These animals, who do most of the draught work, invariably have their legs encased in trousers, fastened with cords over the withers and the hindquarters. The natural impression is that a carnival is in progress. But the donkeys are thus attired whenever they go to work, for the Ile de Rhe is infested with mosquitoes and a peculiar fly most obnoxious to animals.
